LET'S TALK JEWELRY WITH GARY S. WEINSTEIN GEMOLOGIST

ENGRAVING INVITATION

The art of engraving gemstones involves the use of a sharp instrument (know as a graver or turin) to decorate the gemstone's surface by excavating lines, holes and trenches. The most popular engraved objects are cameos and intaglios. Cameos are designs (usually human profiles) in flat relief, around which the background has been cut away. As for intaglios, the subject is cut away, instead of the background, to create a negative image that may be used as a seal in clay. Cameos were particularly prominent during the Elizabethan period in Britain, while intaglios were prized by ancient Greeks and Romans. Both are highly valued today by those who are captured by their romantic images.
