TWO MEN BADLY HURT.

One of the Globe's Dray Teams Is Rather Frisky.

While loading on some church furniture at the factory Tuesday afternoon, one of the Globe's dray teams became frightened, and breaking a line started for a run down Plymouth ave. Geo. Wicks, the driver, was thrown off and a wheel, among other things, passed over him, bruising him up severely, besides breaking a rib. One wheel of the wagon ran up one side of the iron bridge spilling out the furniture in a remarkably mixed manner. John Meyer, a Livonia farmer, was driving his team towards home at just this time and the runaways caught him at the Hanrahan works. They should have turned out and went quietly by, but they didn't. They simply jumped right on to Meyer and his wagon and for a while it looked as if he would be killed. The animals hoofs struck him on the head and shoulders in a terrible manner but he fortunately only suffered some bad bruises about the head and shoulders. The wagons were badly demolished and the furniture had to be taken back to the factory for re-shaping. Wicks is resting comfortably and it is thought he will pull through alright.

One remarkable item in the accident is the fact that this furniture was to take the place of a lot which was in a railroad wreck at Cincinnati last January and this was the last load to the depot here. This team indulged in a little smash up once before, about two weeks ago.

WILL PLAY BALL.

A Northville Boy Signs With the D. A. C's.

Don P. Yerkes, Northville's famous ball pitcher, has signed with the D. A. C's and commenced work yesterday in a game against the U. of M's. The Tribune has this to say of Don, and Harry Waite another former well known Northville boy:

"Don P. Yerkes is about twenty-five years old and is pretty near the six-foot mark. He lives in Northville, where he was born. But for all that he can sling the ball at a lively rate. He began his base ball career with the Northville club and pitched there until he went to the Agricultural College, where he played and was the captain in '80 and '87. He then went back to Northville until 1889, when he pitched for Lansing in the State League, where he made a great record for himself. Since then he played on professional ball but lots of the amateur article with the teams around the J&G Cure town. Joe Walsh knows him thoroughly and says that he is without doubt the speediest and surest pitcher in the state."

Harry Waite, the other addition to the club, was formerly of Northville but he thought better of it and has moved to Detroit. As a boy he pitched with the Northvilles and ran up against the Cass Club of Detroit, then in its prime. He was the hardest man the Cass team had to bat. In 1889 he pitched for Flint in the State League, and since then he has been playing amateur ball exclusively.

Don will accompany the D. A. C's to the world's fair where they play a game May 30th.

HAD A JOLLY GOOD TIME.

A Report of Rev. Belding's Second Pastime Evening.

Friday evening last the second "Pastime Evening" given by Rev. J. M. Belding, at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Clark was as great a success as the reception the week previous. Amid the flash of electric lights, the hostess and Miss Mabel, assisted by Mr. Belding and Mr. Clark, received the guests and assigned each player to their table. At 8:30 the merry games began. Miss Margie Thompson proved the successful competitor in fourteen games, though Harley Johnson and Norman Collins came very near taking the evening's honors. Rollin Purdy boasted of only four successful contests and blushing received the memento for questionable playing.

Refreshments were beautifully served. The following participated in the evening's program: Geo. Bradley and wife, W. G. Yerkes and wife, Wm. Young and wife, Pliny McFarland and wife, L. Barnum and wife, Mr. Stockwell and wife, Mrs. Milo Johnson, Misses Minnie Covert, Belle Covert, Lottie Lake, Myrtle Smithman, Anna Smith, Georgie Palmer, Euma Pinkerton, Kate Buchner, Nellie Joslin, Ethel Dubuar, Harvie Root, Mattie Whipple, Minnie Smith, Pre-cella Stoner, Margie Thompson, Messrs. Rollin Purdy, Matt McFarland, Thos Swan, Mr. Tapp, Chris. Buchner, Ed. Lapham, Harley Johnson, Ralph Horton, Norman Collins, Mr. Steif, Dr. Attridge.

Eight hundred pious pilgrims left Paris for Jerusalem two weeks ago. They started in a special train and will make the pilgrimage in comfortable style throughout. Cardinal Langenieux, the bishop of Liege, and a number of other prelates are of the party.

A STATEMENT recently published by the authorities of Munich gives some startling information as to the increased consumption in that city of dog flesh. So great an appetite seems to have developed for that food that the authorities have thought it time to interfere for the protection of dog owners.

Boston has a Cogswell fountain, though the matter has not been bruited abroad much, owing to the local pride that is strong in that city. The fountain has just been taken from the Common and will be placed in a cemetery, where, it is believed, those who have to be near it will make no protest.

Foresters who have come to the fair expecting to get some good buffalo shooting between visits to Jackson park will be disappointed. If they are distinguished and titled, however, the inhabitants of the Lake Shore drive and the South-side boulevards will vie with each other in demonstrating to them the intricacies of the Chicago system of lion-hunting.

There is still a widespread belief in the South that the meat of hogs killed during the decrease of the moon will shrink in the cooking more than the meat of animals killed when the moon is present, and there are hundreds of persons south of Mason's and Dixon's line who are careful to plant potatoes when the moon is right, lest the increase be small or none.

A book agent some time ago stopped at a house in Oakland, Cal., and asked the occupant to purchase a book. He not only refused, but "saw'd his pebbles on the 'b'y a'." After recovering the agent sued the man, and was recently awarded $5,000 damages by a jury. If it would have been decided cheaper for the man to have bought the book, or in fact, the agent's entire stock.

Among the amendments of the constitution of the state of California which are to be submitted to a vote of the people at the next election is one restoring the suffrage to persons who can read and write, with the exception of citizens who are over 65 years of age. This amendment is said to have been framed in response to a popular demand and to be certain of ratification.

The recent investigations in bacteriology will give the romancers who had already pretty well exhausted the use of hypnotism in the construction of plots a new piece of machinery. The heavy villain may attempt to inoculate the hero with the germs of St. Vitus' dance, sciatic rheumatism and septemias psoriasis, but just as he says "Ha!" in blood-curdling tones the "arras" will be blown against his funny bone and he will sink the poisonous instrument deep into his own flesh. Then this hired girl can come in and say "Poiled" while the servants bear the wretch away to a life-long enjoyment of his own invention.

The fact that the ushers at the Craven wedding, with one exception, wore pink shirts has created a sensation among New York club men. Time was when the only club men admitted to shirts of this particular tint were the song and dance artists who clubbed themselves around the minstrel stage. Now the pink shirt has been, so to speak, taken to the bosom of the swell young man about town, and an interviewer has been assured on good authority that it is perfectly "good form." provided the collar be attached to an essential proviso, and one evidently meant to avert the possibility of such a vulgarism as a pink paper collar.

A NOVEL scheme is to be tried in Boston and its contributing rural territory this summer consisting of what Mrs. Julia Ward Howe has named "Co-operative Vacationing." It is desired to make it possible for ambitious women of the country who, unable to bear the expense of a few weeks' visit to the city during the gay winter season, to exchange courtesies with city women who are unable to pay board during a few weeks' visit to the country. The tired city woman through this co-operative vacationing plan can find some kind family who will afford her a grateful shelter when the hot air of the city is almost insupportable, and in return for the courtesy she is to give the summer hostess an opportunity in the winter for an equally long time in enjoying the advantages of city life.

TURKISH newspapers have received the sultan's permission to recommence publication in the morning. Orders that all journals should be afternoon issues were recently issued, because, it was surmised, morning issues required the press censor to arise too early or else sit up too late.

PADEWSKI is said to have been seized with a nervous disorder in New York. There was nothing the matter with his nerve in Chicago when he and Theodore Thomas "had fun" with the world's fair directorate.

WOLVERINE RED MEN.

LAST OF THE WARRING TRIBE OF POTTAWATOMIES.

They Inhabit the Countries of Southern Michigan and 'Eke Out a Miserable and Lazy Existence—Good Indians as a Result of Circumstances.

(Special Correspondence.)

THE COUNTIES OF Southern Michigan have now only a few families of the once powerful tribe of Pottawatomie Indians. These are the descendants of the band who were ever at war with the less civilized tribes of the West and who drove the eighty Illinois Indians on "Starved Rock" sat down about its base and calmly waited until the last of their victims had perished. They are pretty good Indians now from force of circumstances. They work as much as they must, wear the clothes of civilization, drink firewater, cling to their old language and confess their sins to the good priests, for the Pottawatomies have been within the fold of the church since Father Marquette established a mission among them. For the rest, they preserve the purity of their race, and have a social habit of not understanding English when it suits them. Just now these erstwhile children of the forest are in high glee over the fact that their long-pending claim against the government has been allowed, and that the sum of $150,000 will soon be distributed among the tribe.

For over a score of years Chief Pokagon has planned, hoped and schemed to get his money. With it he hopes to put his followers where they can get enough to eat and wear—hardly a possibility now. They are as poor as poverty can be, as shiftless as hunger and necessity will allow, and aside from sympathy because of their doomed condition they hardly deserve any pity. The remnants of this once powerful and warlike tribe, who for over a century dominated Southwestern Michigan and around whose camps thousands of braves clustered, now aggregate about 240 souls. This number is yearly growing less, so rapidly in fact that a few years will witness their entire extinction.

Chief Pokagon is the last of the Pottawatomie chiefs. When he goes to the "hippy" hunting grounds, whither have countless numbers of his ancestry, he ends all the life of his tribal customs, chiefs, warriors and their succession of authority. The migration of the Pottawatomies from the northwestern to the southeastern shore of Lake Michigan took place during the first decade of the eighteenth century. Twenty years later the Pottawatomies were found to have disappeared from the Miami and spread themselves over a vast area of additional territory, reaching from the vicinity of Chicago around the lake northward to the Grand River and eastward to include the valleys of that stream and the Kalamazoo. This region they held in undisputed possession for a century and a quarter, getting themselves mixed up in all the trouble that was brewing. They were the implacable enemies of the English and the loyal lovers of the French. In the French and Indian war they fought bravely for the French and were not disposed to give their territory over to English rule after peace was declared. Their hatred of the English domination made them willing and eager to enter the conspiracy originated by Pontiac and the final details of the plot were arranged in a camp of this tribe. The slaughter of the garrison at St. Joseph, which they performed in the most thorough and savage manner, was the principal exploit of the Pottawatomies in this series of hostilities. In 1794 this tribe was represented among the Indian hordes who opposed "Mad Anthony" Wayne, but returned from the battle on the Maumee humbled and crestfallen. About the commencement of the present century the United States government sought to negotiate with the Indians for land at the mouth of the St. Joseph River to establish a fort, but the red proprietors refused, and the location at Chicago was selected, upon which Fort Dearborn was erected in 1804. They united with the tribes under Tecumseh, and a detachment of warriors participated in the massacre of the garrison of Fort Dearborn which was marching eastward after evacuating the fort. In several other engagements during the war of 1812 the warriors from this tribe took an active part, of which the principal and last was the battle of the Thames. This was the last ground of the Pottawatomies. They spread for peace, retired to their villages and never raised the tomahawk again. The spirit of warfare in them was broken forever, and they had only the strength to resist an attempt to remove them beyond the Mississippi in 1833. These Indians were induced, as they claim, fraudulently to sell their reserves on Lake Michigan, which were good hunting grounds and convenient to missions. The tribes then settled in Van Buren and Cass counties, where they are now a great many, being small farmers and others building cabins away from the roads. While this tribe did not join their fellows on the western reservations, they claimed the annuity which was due in that event. The missionaries thought their claim was good, and in the hope of securing it they mortgaged their little farms to build a church at each settlement. Other people now own the farms, but the Indians have the big wooded churches. Several small sums were received from the government until, in 1866, the Indians being in terrible straits accepted under protest the sum of $20,000 in full payment, since which time the present claim has been pending.

The money received by them in 1866 was soon spent in dissipation, and while there has since been no real suffering they merely eke out a precarious existence. While some individual members are considerably advanced in civilization, the most of them cannot speak English intelligibly, and in no household is that the common tongue. The blackest has entirely disappeared during the past few years, but some families may be seen preparing their hogan by means of the wooden mortar and pestle. Chief Pokagon is about 70 years of age and lives at a pretentious settlement. With him ends a family of chiefs and he bears the mantle of ignominy and laziness of his remaining people. "It isn't natural for them to work and be as other people," he says sadly. "Civilization kills them off. They live in huts that they keep red hot, then go out on hunting trips for a week and sleep with no shelter. Consumption takes them and there are other diseases that rage among them."

The Doll Feast in Japan.

Now you shall hear of the doll feast of Japan, which, I must tell you, is not a repeat, not a great banquet for dolls, nor a big dinner for the little girl's choice darlings they are. The doll feast of Japan is a great national festival, a sort of doll fair for that it may be called, and to which the whole nation looks forward with pleasure. The streets of the cities are made gay with fancy booths, decorated with all the colors of the rainbow and more colors besides. In these attractive shops are displayed the dolls in their most gorgeous attire. Dolls of all ages and styles wait patiently for the delighted multitude who are sure to assemble before every booth. Altogether it is a charming and picturesque sight. The people, put on their holiday clothes, and with their children go about from street to street admiring and purchasing the dolls that are just as great a delight to the little ones of Japan as are the American dolls to the little people of the United States.

A LITTLE ELEPHANT.

Although 3 Years Old It Only Weighs 200 Pounds.

(Berlin Correspondence.) In Caslan's Panopticon at Berlin there has been an exhibition for the last month of a baby elephant which is the smallest of its kind ever known. It has just been brought from Sumatra by Hagenbeck and is said to be about 3 years old. Lili, this is the name to which the animal answers, is not quite 3 feet high, a little more than 3 feet long and weighs in the neighborhood of 170 pounds.

LILI AND HER KEEPER. The Lilliputian appears to be a very clever animal, and is now undergoing a course of mental training, of which it is expected to give proof at the Chicago Fair, where it will be shown with a number of other zoological artists, which Hagenbeck is bringing to this country.

NETTING HUGE SALMON.

HOW THE SPORT IS CONDUCTED ON THE COLUMBIA.

Fine Fun for the Netters—Big Fish Are Plentiful—Description of the Boat—Water Alive With the Beauties.

The vessel was the ordinary trim fishing boat, and three people and an immense net filled it pretty well. In a short time we reached the place where the net was to be thrown out. The fish run with the tide, so the men must work when the tide is right, be it day or night, and we could see boats all around us, some just getting the nets out, others pulling them up and killing the fish caught in the meshes, while others were coming swiftly out from the island to begin work. As each man is paid for the fish he catches there is no law about turning out, but each starts whenever he chooses.

A smart man will be on the ground at the turn of the tide to make sure of getting the very place he considers the best fishing ground; while an idler will be half the time in getting out and at his work. It tells in the day's catch if a man is early or late.

Our boat was neither among the first of the last. We still had a fair choice of ground, and in a few minutes the fisherman was tossing the net over the side and the boatman was rowing up tide to allow the net being spread out as fast as possible. The net was over 100 feet long, and was fitted with sinkers on one edge, while the other was supplied with a line of floats. By this means it was held in position in the water, and formed a sort of fence against which the fish dashed as they swam up the stream. The meshes were rather large, and the small fish were able to swim through and continue their way up the tide, while large ones were caught by the gills.

In a few minutes the net was all paid out and the fishermen sat down to wait for the first fish to get entangled in the meshes. The boatman pulled leisurely up the stream and the row of bobbing floats strung out behind us looked like little bubbles on the surface of the calm water. Suddenly one of the bubbles was jerked down and in an instant the boat was headed for the place where it had floated a moment before. The fishermen stretched out over the side of the boat and caught the net by the float next to where the sunken one had been and pulled in the net hand over hand. A splash, a flurry of foam, and the steel-gray head of a big salmon appeared above the surface.

The man caught up a queer weapon, which I had noticed and wondered about, and struck the fish a blow with the knob of iron on one end of the bar; then turning it, he thrust the hook on the other end into the gills of the half-stunned fish, and with a pull landed his struggling captive inside the boat. A jerk freed the net, which sank back into its place. The fish was flopping viciously about, and the man struck it again and again with his big iron club, before it succumbed to its fate. We often speak of eyes as having "no more expression than a fish's eye." But I never saw one and anger more plainly expressed than in the eyes of that first salmon.

Meanwhile the lower float had been bobbing up and down while we were killing our magnificent captive, and the boat was turned and pulled rapidly back to that end of the net. Again the fisherman ducked and caught the net; again he pulled, but this time the net did not come home so easily as he expected. Another pull and yet another before the head of the fish showed above water. He was a big fellow, bigger than the first, and a smile replaced the look of disgust on the fisherman's face as he drew back his hand to grasp his club.

Just as he was about to strike the fatal blow the net was jerked from his hold. Another float but a short distance further was pulled under. There were two fish to be landed now instead of one.

The net was with difficulty raised again to the edge of the boat and the first fish was secured. He was the biggest salmon I ever saw. He must have weighed nearly a hundred pounds as he was far bigger than one which I saw weighed that touched the beam at sixty-five pounds.

The monster was thrown into the boat, stunned by a blow, and the man pulled away at the second fish. That also was a very large one, but not equal to our monster. Just as the fisherman was pushing his hook down to try and catch the fish by the gills the big one just thrown into the boat gave one flop, plunged over the side, falling fair upon the arm which held the net, tore it free and both fish were gone.

The two men sat and looked at each other a moment, and I know they wished they were alone in the boat that they might find some relief for their incensed feeling in language which politeness restrained them from using before me.

Remodeled Dress Skirts.

Dressmakers who are requested to remodel last year's skirts that are made of textiles too rich and expensive to cast aside use various methods of transforming these skirts into models now in vogue. Some cut them into bias buttones, which they put upon new skirts or those closely gored; others add double breasted fronts; others make of similar matching or contrasting fabrics, and others again open the skirt down the front in directoire fashion over a gored underskirt or insert a panel which they frame in gimp or passementerie.

Never, Del. has a postmaster and deputy postmaster, and these two have administered the office through the political changes of the past eight years.

Never, Del. has a postmaster and deputy postmaster, and these two have administered the office through the political changes of the past eight years. When the administration is Democratic so is the postmaster and the deputy a Republican. When the administration is Republican the Democratic postmaster and his deputy simply change places. As the change cannot be made immediately upon the inauguration of a new president, there is a period of some months when the citizens are in doubt as to which officer is postmaster and which is deputy.

Love in Lodgings.

CHAPTER V—CONTINUED. But it is not in the nature of one brother to admit that another brother can make a favorable impression upon the fair sex.

CHAPTER VI. The Lodger Grows Restive. She was a splendid girl, the treasure! Young though it was impossible to say how young, broad, with a breadth which suggested that in an encounter with a furniture van or a brewer's dray, it was the van or the dray which would suffer the most.

With the assistance of Lizer, the rest of the evening passed in comparative peace; and when Temple peeped out of his window on the following morning, and saw the sun sparkling on the sea, his spirits rose, and he almost felt that it was better to be at Westcote even in these desperate circumstances, than not to be there at all.

"Papa," put in Linda good-humoredly, "they do their best to make us comfortable, I'm sure."

"My dear," returned he, "that is just why we should come out and enjoy the one comfort they cannot deprive us of—the sea air."

"Oh," said Temple hastily, "I am afraid they wouldn't pay much attention to me. I'm here by myself, you know—and—er—I've only got a bedroom on the second floor—er—all I could get, you know, quite thankful to get anything in fact. And—er—I'm sure they wouldn't pay any attention to me—and—er—I'm only here for a few days—and—er—it would be very awkward for me if they turned me out."

"Well, papa, perhaps he will cook better to-day!" "Perhaps if he is not so drunk." "Drunk!" echoed Temple faintly, but scarcely able now to keep indignation out of his tones.

"My dear, if there had been one of them only partially so, I would not have sent that one to wait upon you! Now, you could see for yourself that the creature who did wait against the table, he leaned against the door, he laid the tablecloth so that it looked like the sea in a gale, and he put the crust-stand down between my knives and forks, and the plates in the center of the table!"

"There," he cried, as if the very bricks and stucco proclaimed the guilt of its inmates. "There is the worst lodging-house in all England."

The young man affected great surprise. "Why," he exclaimed, "that is where I am staying, too."

"You don't say so? What an extraordinary coincidence! Ha!" and the colonel's face brightened. "Then we can combine our forces. We will make our complaint together, and threaten to take proceedings against them unless they instantly procure us proper attendance and decent cooking."

"I see that Mr. Monk must be very much less particular than young fellows just entering the service used to be in my time," said the colonel, very ill pleased at being disappointed in his hope of finding an ally.

"Vegetables! Tell him to go to Jericho with his vegetables!" roared the suffering one. "Well, he can't till he's got them, you know. I would have gone, but he heard me talking about fatted pigeons, so he wouldn't trust me. I'm awfully sorry you're uncomfortable, Temple, but I think you ought to go. You're not the only one, you know. You're not even the only one that's in love, for Cameron's got it just as badly as you."

"The editor was very busy one day with a heap of news and editorial manuscripts before him awaiting his attention, when a long-haired young man came in. The visitor deliberately produced some papers from his inside pocket and remarked: 'Ahem! I have here a few verses—'

"When a Man is at His Best. The best half of life is in front of the man of 40 if he be anything of a man. The work he will do will be done with the hand of a master and not of a raw apprentice. The trained intellect does not 'see men as trees walking.'"

COMPASSES ON METAL SHIPS. Study Necessary to Prevent Deviation. Studied by Government Officers. The compass on board the steel and iron ships of the present day has become a department in itself and according to the New York Times, it has been the study of officers specially detailed for the purpose of discovering the influences on the compass and the means for correcting the consequent errors.

"There are a good many things which affect the compass, and these are all studied out by two officers of the navy department, who communicate their discoveries to the officers who are to take charge of the compasses of a ship about to go into commission. One of these officers has found enough in the subject to write a work and 'Practical Problems and the Compensation of the Compass,' by Lieutenant Diehle, is regarded as the standard book in its line.

A Typhoid Cure From the Tyrol. A woman was brought to one of the New York city hospitals some weeks ago suffering from typhoid fever, but one feature of the case could not be accounted for by the diagnosis of typhoid. The woman's body was covered from head to foot with small star-shaped figures. Each was composed of a central spot no larger than a pin head, surrounded by five other spots of the same size at regular distances, from each other. Such a species of skin disease had never before come under the observation of the hospital staff, and there was nothing to be found in the books which would clear up the case.

A Mirage on the Delaware Coast. Some fortunate persons have seen occasionally in midsummer a really perfect mirage on the Delaware coast, between the breakwater and a little watering place called Rehoboth five or six miles below. Shortly after leaving Rehoboth by land one seems to see, three or four hundred yards inland from the beach, a glassy sea reflecting in its still waters the hotels at Rehoboth, the trees to the north beyond, and the spires of Lewes five miles away. So perfect is the illusion that persons who know the place can scarce disbelieve the evidence of their eyes, as the shore of the sea appears to be only a few hundred feet away. It slowly melts as one's approach, however, until only clear puddles appear in the hollows, and these, too, vanish as one draws nearer.

A Lady With Sixteen Pockets. A lady writes to say that as a daily experience she carries sixteen pockets—two in her divided skirt, four in her waistcoat, five in her indoor jacket (which by reason of their contents weigh just five pounds seven ounces), and five in her outdoor jacket.

GEMS OF THE. Much doing is not so in well-doing. Ornamental characters are weak spots. Love hopes always, because it believes always.

It is hard to agree with a man who quarrels with himself. It is of no use turning back after you get more than half way. The most manifest sign of wisdom is continued cheerfulness. The easiest thing for a loafer to do is to find fault with busy people.

Mrs. J. H. French has been very ill for the past few days, but is now convalescent.

Ed. Shaffer, head clerk at the Park house, and Miss Jennie Jide were married at Detroit Tuesday. They will make their home at the hotel.

The annual statement of the Northville State Savings Bank will be found in another column of this issue and it is a very creditable showing indeed for so new a bank.

The Hanrahan refrigerator company shipped a carload of refrigerators this week and have orders ahead for a carload more to go soon as they can be got out.

Please bear in mind the Gypsy festival at the opera house Saturday night. Admission, gallery 10 cents, down stairs 20 cents, children 10 cents. These low prices ought to insure a large attendance.

When in Detroit stop at the Hotel Wayne, opposite the M. C. depot, where you will be well entertained and handsomely cared for. It costs no more to stop at the best hotel in the city than the cheapest.

The Northville F. & A. M. lodge goes to Detroit next Tuesday to work the Master Mason degree for Oriental lodge Oriental lodge is Detroit's "kid glove" lodge, being the most aristocratic one in the city.

Mrs. R. H. Beal is again at Grace hospital for treatment. The character of her troubles, which was formerly supposed to be cancer, has not yet been fully determined. Her friends hope for her much improvement which is indicated by her present condition.

The Illinois Refrigerator company is a new organization at Morrison, Ill. The capital is $50,000 and F. E. Beal of this place is president of the new institution. This factory will work entirely with the western trade and in no way effect the Hanrahan factory's business here.

F. E. Beal has purchased the thirty-five acres of land just east of Dean Griswold's place on the East-line and fifty acres of the McFarland heirs on the opposite side of the road just west of J. D. Yerkes. This will make as fine an eighty-five acre farm as ever lay out of doors.

Next Sunday evening the sixth sermon on Joseph, at the Presbyterian church will cover the interesting events in Joseph's life, of his pathetic meeting with his old sister and Jacob's appearance before Pharaoh. Subject "How Old art Thou?" All are cordially welcomed.

On the first page of this week will be found the report of the refrigerator bonus fund payments with the subscribers names and amounts. We again call the attention of our readers to this list of names. They are in every way worthy of your support and should receive your patronage in preference to those who lend no aid at all.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church have organized a Ladies Aid society with the following officers: President, Miss Helen Brooks; vice president, Mrs. E. S. Horton; secretary Mrs. B. A. Wheeler; treasurer, Mrs. Dexter White. Mrs. Mary Kellogg and Mrs. Rosa Little, together with the officers, form an executive committee.

Our dramatic company, which played the "Spy of Gettysburg" at Milford last week, are loud in their praise of Milford's hospitality. They said that the manager of the hall, the editor of the Times, the landlord of the Central house and people generally used them like lords, each striving to outdo the other. The hotel was kept open until time for the 2 a. m. train for their special benefit and the bus was ordered up and the whole party conveyed to the train free of expense. The audience that greeted them at the hall was a large one considering the rainy night and it was also an exceedingly appreciative one. The company say they didn't know that any village except Northville could entertain strangers with so good a gal as this. Really, Milford is getting jealous of you now.

"Man wants but little here below" The statement causes mirth. It might have been true long ago. But now he wants the earth.

Rev. Arnold will preach a special temperance sermon for young men at the Baptist church Sunday evening.

B. C. Stark is representing the Northville K. P. lodge at the grand lodge meeting, Detroit, this week.

The right young man can learn of a good position open for him as grocery clerk at a good salary by applying at this office.

The Epworth League presented a fine program last Sunday evening, consisting of songs and reports of the several departments. The society now numbers 52 and are doing good work.

C. A. Dowler and Miss Eva Knapp were married last evening at the bride's home, High street, by Rev. W. T. Jaquess of Detroit. The RECORD extends congratulations.

About two years ago, editor Neal, of the Northville Record, moistened his hands and took hold of the paper. In his last issue he leaves his readers to judge whether or not he has made a jam up good paper, and is evidently willing to whip the man who says he hasn't. We hasten to say that he has.

Aeneas Bollatt ran on to a regular snake village on John Thompson's farm one day last week, and, after making sure he was not dreaming, commenced a slaughter. More than a hundred got away, but thirty-eight soon lay dead on the battle field, the victims of Aeneas' strong right arm and a heavy stick. This is an actual fact. The count was exact even to a single snake. We have eye witnesses to swear to the occurrence as having actually taken place and this item has no connection whatever with our regular snake story which will be published some time in July.

Around The Country.

According to South Lyon and Dundee papers—farmers there have just "got through husking corn."

The Holly Advertiser has lied itself back to its former natural and commendable shape, the standard 6 column quarto. It is an improvement.

The Courier is trying to devise some means of getting rid of the Ann Arbor swill, since hogs are no longer permitted inside the city limits.

Holly schools will graduate thirteen pupils next month and the class motto will be "Not twilight, but dawn." The enrollment of the school is 300, and all the graduates are admitted into the U. of M. without examinations.

The Adrian Press, the funniest, and withal one of the best, newspapers in the state is just in its twenty-first year. May it continue on for another score of years: a market to thousands of readers weekly happy.

Plymouth's water works system is completed. Beer still sells for five cents a glass however.—Wyandotte Herald.

This will be news we think, so far as the water works system is concerned to Plymouth people.

The Saline Observer man has had a number of large eggs handed in to him this year. Not bad to take.—Ann Arbor Courier.

The good or bad part of the take depends somewhat on the fresh or stale quality of the eggs.

The Farmington Enterprise has discovered that a Chicago world's fair cup of coffee costs, including milk and sugar, 20 cents, and an imitation ham sandwich 25 cents. Bro Bloomer says he's going if he has to mortgage the Farmington town pump.

Large strings of fish are seen wending their way through streets nowadays suspended from the arms of many fisherman, the fruit of long and weary hours spent along the banks of the Rouge.—Wayne Review.

Or five minutes at the meat market on the way home.

O., South Lyon is getting to be an awful bad town. The Picket tells of some fellows who lay low in the school house yard and scare the chickens out of the passers by. Not only this, but some one stole L. S. Allen's furniture store last night and it can't be found hide nor hair of as yet.

The school board have re-engaged Prof. Smith as principal of the South Lyon schools for next year and in so doing have "made a ten strike" as the Prof. is just the man for the place. Miss Farrell and also Miss Heath have been notified that they will be retained next year.—St. Lyon Picket.

Longly following the cyclone or heavy rain storms papers have not yet decided which it was—comes the news from Ypsilanti that the society young men there, have taken to undershirts outside. The Ypsilantian is authority for this. What strange effects are sometimes produced by fright.—Adrian Press.

Editor Neal has just completed his second year as publisher of the Northville Record. He has grown fat at the business—Neal weighs about 120 pounds—but he has made some money and likewise a rattling good paper out of a once very tame sheet. He got his git their gait by riding a bicycle and will continue to build up a good Record.—Wyandotte Herald.

About our first schooling in Michigan Newspaper business was gained in writing for Bro. Haven's paper. The Herald is not a bad paper to pattern after and while Northville can hardly expect a publication quite up to the standard of a city like Wyandotte, we shall keep a close step onto the Herald's heels.

10 MINERS' FATAL FALL.

A CAGE WITH 10 MEN DROPS OVER 3,000 FEET.

The Helpless Miners Crushed to a Mass at the Bottom of the Shaft—Defective Indicator the Cause.

Ten miners were precipitated over 3,000 feet to the bottom of the perpendicular shaft at the Calumet and Hecla mine at Houghton and all met an instant and a horrible death. The miners were coming up for dinner and the engineer thought he had 750 feet farther to hoist the cage and pulled them against the roof of the shaft, crushing some of them. The coupling pin broke and the cage and its load of human freight fell to the bottom of the shaft, a distance of over 3,000 feet. The list of the dead is as follows:

- ALLEN CAMERON, son of Capt. Cameron, in charge.
- JOHN S. SULLIVAN, single, aged 40.
- ANDREW ENO, married, aged 40.
- JOHN HOBBS, single, aged 24.
- JOHN OGDEN, leaves wife and several children.
- JOSEPH POPE, leaves wife and one child.
- JAMES COOK, single, supporting a widowed mother.
- MONTE WORTH, leaves a wife and several children.
- MICHAEL KEVITT, a widower.
- JAMES TRIVIA, leaves a wife and three children.

Never in the history of copper mining has so serious an accident occurred as that which happened at the perpendicular shaft of the Calumet and Hecla. Over a quarter century's history of this celebrated mine tells no tale of woe such as this.

The 10 men killed had gone down in the morning to timber and repair, and had worked all forenoon. When noon came they stepped into the skip to be hoisted 3,150 feet to the surface to get their dinner. The time in being hoisted is only a minute by the powerful engine used. Ernest Tallin, a very reliable engineer, says his indicator showed 750 feet more to hoist. It must have failed to respond. The cage went crashing against the roof of the shaft house. There was a crashing of timbers. The coupling pin to the wire cable broke. The bucket fell with lightning velocity over 3,000 feet to the bottom of the shaft.

REP. KIRKWOOD DEAD.

A Clergy Prison Escape.

Charles H. Price, a convict, and helper in the Withington & Cooley shop at Jackson prison, made the clever escape of any prisoner in a long time. Ten dozen snaths were being put into boxes for Australia. Price put five dozen into one and made a false top to the box, which he fastened by two buttons on the inside. The convict had confederates to assist him in getting into the box, and was driven to the company's warehouse near the prison, where the load was left on the platform. As soon as the teamster left, Price slipped the buttons, lifted the top and walked away. The trick was not discovered until the workmen were loading the box upon the car, when the top came off. Price was serving a seven-year sentence for forgery, and came from Detroit.

Cyclone in Livingston County.

Several farms in Livingston county were devastated by a cyclone. The storm first struck the farm of Louis Dyer, destroying the barn, outbuildings, orchard and crops. Then it struck the premises of William Thomson and William Placeway, half a mile further east, completely laying low all the farm buildings, orchards and wind-mills. Several persons were hurt, but not seriously, though many horses and sheep were killed. John Fitch's house one mile farther east was also completely wrecked, and not a post was left standing, but the family, consisting of seven persons, were not badly hurt.

JOHN CHINAMAN FIRED.

THE U. S. SUPREME COURT UP-HOLDS THE GEARY LAW.

All the Pig-Tails must Register or be Sent Back to Their Native Land.—A Reshearing Asked for.

The supreme court of the United States has affirmed the constitutionality of the Geary-Chinese exclusion and registration act. The opinion was announced by Justice Gray, Justice Brewer dissenting. The announcement that a decision in the case was expected attracted a large attendance of spectators.

Justice Gray, in announcing the judgment of the court, said that the power of this nation to restrict or prohibit the immigration of any alien into the country or to require such aliens already in the country to remove therefrom, was a well settled principle of international law, and was confirmed by an unbroken line of decisions in this court. It was within the legislative power of the government to determine the regulations under which these aliens should be permitted to remain in this country. As to the requirements that the Chinese should establish the right by the evidence of one credible white witness, Justice Gray said that it was within the power of the legislature to determine the character of evidence that may be received in a case of law and what force should be given to the testimony of witnesses.

Justice Gray said it was one of the fundamental principles of the law of nations that every independent had the inherent right to keep aliens out of its territory and to order them to get out of its territory. That power, public welfare demanded. That power exists in time of war and equally so in time of peace and has always been recognized as belonging to independent nations. The United States—all of the great powers—has the power to make war, to make peace, to pass acts of naturalization, to pass all necessary and proper laws to carry out the powers reposed in Congress. On the political department, he declared the duty of international relations. The power of exclusion is vested in the executive officers and the judiciary have no authority to reverse the action. Treaties with China originally—1859—provided for free intercourse; but it was soon found necessary to regulate the entrance of Chinese into this country. If Congress makes a law inconsistent with a treaty it may give a foreign nation the right to complain and to take such action as it may deem best for its own interests, but the duty of the courts of the United States is clear and they must recognize its force. He would not touch upon the wisdom, the policy, or the justice of the act. These questions were for the political, legislative and executive departments of the government if the act were within their constitutional powers, and it would be out of place for the court to interfere.

Justice Brewer announced that he dissented from the views of Justice Gray. He declared the act unconstitutional and said that if it were upheld there was no guarantee that similar treatment might not be accorded to other classes of our population than the Chinese.

Justice Field also dissented and characterized the act as inhuman and brutal. He declared that the decision of the court was to his mind fraught with the gravest dangers to the precious constitutional liberties of the people.

Chief Justice Fuller also dissented from the opinion of the court. The chief justice denied the soundness of the proposition that the cases before the court were such as the political department of the government alone could deal with. It was in his view a judicial question, and however reluctant courts may be to pass upon the constitutionality of legislative acts, it was the very essence of judicial duty was properly imposed upon it.

Four justices sustained Justice Gray's opinion and the result was the act declared constitutional by a majority of five to three.

After court had concluded announcement of the opinions J. Hubley Ashton, of counsel for the Chinese, moved for a rehearing of the case and an argument before a full bench at the next term. At present the court stands five to three in support of the law. Justice Harlan being absent. The court took the afternoon adjournment, the effect of which is to postpone until the motion is acted upon any proceeding under the judgment of the court announced.

Bad Outlook for Wheat.

According to the latest crop report the outlook for wheat is not as good as it was a month ago. Five per cent of the acreage will be plowed up as winter-killed or in other ways damaged. Compared with the April report the decline is 10 per cent. In the southern countries' correspondents, without exception, report wheat in a bad condition. Clover meadows and pastures are 10 per cent better than a year ago, while fruit buds have not yet been injured.

BRIEFLY TOLD.

An exhibit of apples, pears and grapes has been received at the World's Fair from New South Wales, in perfect condition. Sixty days elapsed from the time of their picking until placed on exhibition.

One-third of the officials elected in Kansas at the last election have failed to comply with the law requiring them to file a statement of the election expenses, and their right to occupy the offices will be contested.

The private car in which President Lincoln traveled in the '60s is being overhauled at Omaha, and will be sent to the World's Fair. It has been doing service on a Colorado Central work train as a boarding car for several years.

The Republicans of Rhode Island elected a senator in the North Smithfield district which gives them a majority on joint ballot and will enable them to elect state officers unless the Democratic house unseats some of their members. In the latter case the senate will refuse to meet in joint assembly and the old officers will hold over. All in all it's a pretty muddle.

COMMISSIONER BLOUNT MADE HAWAIIAN MINISTER.

The World's Fair People Have Decided to Keep the Gates Open on Sunday and the Admission Will be 25 Cents.

The World's Fair gates will be swung wide open to the public, seven days in the week, and the vexed question of Sunday opening is settled. The price is to be 25 cents, just one-half the week day admission. Edwin Walker, attorney for the board, submitted an opinion on the question and on the strength of this opinion the board decided. Briefly Mr. Walker decided that the exposition was one thing and the expropriation grounds altogether a distinct and separate thing. On this local director stands accordingly. Unless the national commission acts vigorously to prevent it Jackson Park will be open on Sunday, the exhibition buildings will be closed. The action of the board will go into effect May 21. The vote by which the resolution was passed was 27 to 7. Under the resolution Midway Plaisance will also be thrown open.

All bicycle riders, whether belonging to clubs or not, or allied to any organization of wheelmen, will have to pay the World's Fair. Under the arrangements made by the authorities for this demonstration every wheelman will be permitted to participate in the celebration, May 31, one day after the great Pullman road race. This will include riders of both sexes and those from abroad as well as local detached members. It is expected that nearly 30,000 wheelmen will participate. It is anticipated that the parade, for such it will be, will draw 100,000 people. It is intended to have a parade at night, the riders carrying lights. Both of these parades will far surpass anything of the kind ever attempted in this world.

BLOUNT MADE MINISTER. The Commissioner to Hawaii succeeds. Minister Stevens at Honolulu. The President has appointed James H. Blount, of Georgia, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the Hawaiian Islands, succeeding John L. Stevens. The fact that Mr. Blount would be transferred from the post of special commissioner to make report on the advisability of annexing the Hawaiian Islands to the United States to the position of minister was previously announced in these dispatches. And since the announcement was made the change was decided upon by the cabinet. A report from Mr. Blount has been received by Secretary Gresham and was taken by him to the cabinet meeting. Owing to the confidential character of the report its contents are kept secret, but it is presumed that it contained such information that the President determined to lose no time in commissioning a new minister to succeed Mr. Stevens.

Michigan's W. C. T. U. The twenty-ninth annual convention of the state W. C. T. U. was held at Muskegon with Mrs. Mary T. Lathrop of Jackson, state president, in the chair. There were 200 delegates present. The personal donations for the year amounted to $24,900, total given toward Hackley Park fund $934. Miscellaneous sources, $285.64; other sources, $14,777 $45.67, $164.79 for Hackley Park, $120 for Emma Watson room at Grand Rapids, $97.90. Total amount received from all sources, including $1,099.90 balance on hand at the beginning of the year, $4,297.00; total expenditures, $2,372.40; leaving a balance of $1,924.60 in the treasury. The report of the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Lizzie M. Johnson, showed a membership in the state of 7,937, with thirty new unions during the year.

Mrs. Mary T. Lathrop, of Jackson, was again elected president, this being the thirtieth time, by a rising vote. It was decided to name the W. C. T. U. building at Hackley Park, Muskegon, "Mary T. Lathrop Hall." Mrs. Julia R. Parish, of Bay City, was elected corresponding secretary.

TIME FOR UNCLE SAM TO KICK.

The Nicaraguan Revolutionists Take Possession of the Canal.

The New York Herald's special from Panama, Colombia, says: Fort San Carlos, at the head of the San Juan river, Nicaragua, and Fort Castillo, on the line of the proposed Nicaraguan canal, has been captured by the revolutionists. It is reported that they have seized the canal property and that the government has been cut off from an outlet to the coast on the eastern boundary of Nicaragua. They captured several cannon and many rifles, which were at once sent to Granada, where the provisional government has established its headquarters. The possession of these forts is most important to the revolutionists. The fact that their possession gives the revolutionists entire control of the route to the eastern coast of the country and a permanent permanent from obtaining supplies from that quarter, made them capture one of the earliest objects of the revolutionists.

A battle is expected to occur any day in Barranca, near Mosara. The government is massing its troops before that town and preparing to attack the revolutionists. It has 2,000 well-armed men and six Krupp guns. A well-trained French artillery officer is in command of the batteries. At the top of a steep hill the revolutionaries have 1,000 strong and well fortified. Their position is defended by batteries of five brass field pieces and two Krupp guns. When the expected battle takes place it is believed the fate of the revolution will be settled.

Supreme Judges Want More Salary. A meeting of the justices of the supreme court and judiciary committee of the two branches of the state legislature, the former intimated that none of the bills at present pending in the legislature for the relief of the court, would accomplish its purpose. An increase in the number of justices would make it more difficult to obtain a unanimous opinion, and the increased number of those who would take part in the discussions, would rather retard than expedite matters. The plan to divide the court is unconstitutional, as it would practically establish two supreme courts instead of one. Members of the court suggested that the only proper plan would be to increase the salary of justices from $5,000 to $7,500, and compel them to reside at Lansing. With all of the justices there are all times, fully occupied, no business could be transacted and important interests, now frequently jeopardized by waiting for a regular session of court, could be promptly attended to.

The New English Poet Laureate. John Ruskin, whom Mr. Gladstone has named for poet laureate, is much better known as a critic than a poet, his verses being few in number and written at an early age. They never counted among his great works, which have been chiefly devoted to art and architecture. Very few of Ruskin's verses have ever been published, and he soon gave up poetry for more serious studies at Oxford. He, however, had gained the Newdigate prize for English poetry at Christ Church in that institution in 1833 at the age of 20. He graduated at Oxford in 1842, and subsequently devoted himself to painting and art criticism, touching incidentally on questions of sociology and political economy.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW. New York, May 15.—R. G. Dunn & Co. weekly review of trade. The smash in industrial stocks, the failure of some of the National Cordage company, and the largest decline in stocks known in many weeks since 1878, have been followed by a strikingly little disturbance. Business has shown remarkable soundness and strength under such strain. Speculation at Chicago and Indianapolis, and rumor of others, reflect large losses in speculation. Speculation has lifted wheat 25 cents, though the report is less gloomy than was expected. Corn has slightly advanced and pork prices largely. Cotton is unchanged. Oil is 1/2 cent higher. Exports also declining. All exports from New York were $1,100,000 less the past two weeks than last year, while imports show increase of $1,000,000 for one week. While failures for the past week were 280 in number against 175 last year in this country and Canada, and the United States 27, against 150, considering the extraordinary pressure in stock and money markets, the 1893 has been followed by success than could have been expected.
