FARMINGTON'S SHOW.

BABY EXHIBIT AND BAZAAR FOR OCT. 9 AND 10.

Fifteen Classes and An Endless Number of Prizes.

Farmington people are anticipating that their coming bazaar and baby show, Oct. 9 and 10, will be one of the most pleasant and successful events ever held in that village. It will be given under the auspices of the Helping Hand society in the town hall.

On Friday afternoon the bazaar will be opened for the exhibit and sale of all kinds of useful and fancy articles interspersed with music and other interesting means of special entertainment. Admission free.

On Saturday afternoon the baby show begins for which the small admission of ten cents will be charged.

All babies under three years are eligible. Prizes will be offered in 15 classes as follows: Prettiest, homeliest, tallest and shortest baby all under 2 years. For the fattest, featest, best dressed and crosslest baby each under 1 year. For the baby with most hair, least hair, largest foot, smallest foot, each under 6 months. For best recitation, best singing baby under 3 years. For prettiest baby baller. Entries open to world. A number of prizes will be offered in each class.

In the evening a "New Woman" a light and amusing comedy will be presented to which an admission fee of ten cents will be charged.

A number of Northville babies will be in the race.

Suburban News.

She makes the bread herself, to save expense, she says, you know, and what is very funny, she doesn't knead the dough.

Ritza Sauer is the name of a sweet Milan school ma'am.

Chelsea gets the only Washburn county pumpkin show this season.

Miss Leila Paddock a former well known Plymouth lady was married Sept. 15.

If the Advertiser didn't libel a little about it, a Holly man has harvested a citron which weighs fifty pounds.

Superintendent Morrison, of the Milford schools is just recovering from a successful operation for appendicitis.

Kate Slinger of Brighton got tired of the old family name and last week made a swap with Charley Woolenlupt of the same settlement for his.

A stock company composed of the business men of Rockwood, Flat Rock, Carleton and Waltz are constructing a telephone line to connect those towns.

The Fowlerville Observer, we observe, has had a column knocked off all around and hereafter will do business as a five column paper instead of six.

Mayor Pingree was one of the attractions at the Plymouth fair last week Friday. A large number of well known county politicians and office holders were also present.

Detroit is agitating a single standard time system—central standard. It's a good idea. There is no need for but one time in Michigan—the two or three different ones only leads to confusion and inconvenience.

Col. Lou Burt, county auditor, is getting a great reputation on his feats of ventriloquism and conjuring at which he is very clever. On the county campaign tours Col. Lou and his entertainment is proving a great attraction.

The editress of the Trenton Visitor is playing in hard luck these days. Not only is the young lady ill herself but two of her children are also in a like condition. Mrs. Ayers is a woman of both grit and bustle and is deserving of much sympathy.

The grit of Flat Rock's new night watch was tested last week by a foot pad attack in which the watchman put his foes to rout by five illy-directed shots from his revolver. It is not known whether it was a test of bravery put up by local talent or a genuine invasion by professional highwaymen.

Minnie Kelley of Holly came very near going "over the river" by the bicycle route last week. While riding the iron steed along the depot platform the animal became frightened at a passing freight train and finally threw her between the track and the platform. The conductor of the train had presence of mind enough to seize the young lady and hold her fast against the platform until the train had safely passed. It was rather a narrow escape.

and it is quite safe to say that Minnie will no longer perambulate along the railroad track a-stride of a wheel.

A bogus detective "did" the Orion hotel man for $20 last week by obtaining liquor from his non-licensed bar and then settling the case in the name of the government for the above sum. The hotel lord got his money back but is now up on a genuine arrest for selling the "booze" without legal permission.

A peculiar accident happened to John Bell's bright twelve year old boy of Orion one day last week. While attempting to lift a squash the stem pulled out and the released weight caused the stem to fly up and strike him in the eye. The ball of the eye was penetrated to such an extent that it is feared he may lose the sight of it.

On Saturday Frank Hudson, a machinist of Milford, while insane struck William Eno, a fellow workman, twice on the head with a two-pound hammer, crushing in his skull. Eno was still alive at last report, but was in a critical condition. Hudson was taken to the Pontiac asylum Sunday. He appeared very quiet but had a wild look in his eyes.

If the Brighton Argus man would lie with any kind of reason, no one would seriously object even if it were discovered but when he acknowledges the receipt of a tomato measuring 18 inches in diameter, weighing 2 pounds as he did last week he not only knocks all reason higher than Gilderoy's kite but at the same time brings us more truthful editors into general disrepute.

As was expected A. N. Kimmins of Novi was re-nominated by the republicans of the second district of Oakland county at Holly last week for state representative. Fred M. Warner of Farmington was nominated for state senator at Pontiac Tuesday. A person would be obliged to look far and long through the peninsular state to find a pair of more worthy, honorable and upright gentlemen than these.

Carolina agreed to give David H. Salisbury $3,000 bonus for locating his shoe factory there. David started his foot pitten machines with forty men to work as he agreed but now some foggy tax-payers rise up and enjoin the city treasurer against paying the bonus on the grounds that the city ordinance does not legally so provide. Legal authority has been obtained on both sides and by the time the matter is settled the $3,000 will have been expended and the factory will be pegging away in some other town.

Randall Colvin Died Tuesday.

Randall Colvin, one of the best known, and among the most highly respected citizens of our village, died Tuesday afternoon after a long and suffering illness. He was seventy-five years of age and had lived in and near Northville all his life. He was a member of the Baptist church and the former pastor here. Rev. Mr. Arnold of Wayne, conducts the funeral service which occurs from the home this afternoon. The burial is at Novi. Deceased leaves a widow but no children.

Walled Lake News.

George Ingersol has gone north on a business trip.

Miss Allie Nesbitt of Kalamazoo is visiting her sister, Mrs. Oel Moore.

Will Parmenter has bought the store and residence lately occupied by Thos. Palmer.

John Erwin entertained his Sunday school class one afternoon last week. An enjoyable time is reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Hyde Smith and daughter Aggie attended the wedding of Ralph Devereaux and Miss Estella Furse at Drayton Plains, Thursday, Sept. 17.

The apple social which was announced for last week Friday night was held on Monday night of this week. Though the attendance was small, a good time was had.

Cards have been received announcing the marriage of Miss Jennie Smith of Detroit to D. E. Roach of the same city. The bride is well known here and has the best wishes of all.

Myron Devereaux is very ill with congestion of the spine. Some girls returning from the social Monday evening found him lying in the path unconscious. He was taken into the Baptist parsonage and his mother and the doctor hastily summoned. He was conveyed home about midnight and lay in a delirious state all next day.

FRED M. WARNER.

He Was Re-Nominated for State Senator Tuesday.

Fred M. Warner of Farmington was re-nominated for state senator for the 12th district at the republican convention held in Rochester Tuesday. Mr. Warner is one of the best known and most popular young men in Oakland county and his re-nomination, by acclamation was a fitting tribute of the esteem in which he is held, and the endorsement of his representation of two years ago.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our great appreciation of the many kind and sympathetic acts of neighbors and friends during the illness, death and burial of Mr. Bailey. Mrs. H. D. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. McKee, etc.

Y. M. C. L. Resumes Sunday.

The men of this community will please take notice that the men's meetings will be resumed next Sunday. Rev. C. S. Nightingale of the Baptist church will be the speaker. Show your appreciation of the work by your presence at the beginning.

Base-Ball News.

The Business Men have got their nerve together and will play the first team game of ball at 3:30 (this afternoon). German and Lewis are to be the battery for the Business Men, and probably Lehman and Ambler or Hunt for the first team. This game will give our boys a battery practice for their Milford game next week when D. P. Verkes twirls the ball against them on the fair grounds for the $25 purse. The Business Men in to days game are German, Lewis, W. G. Verkes, Borfer, Laybatt, C. C. Verkes, Murditt, Ely, Beal and Freydl. First nine—Ambler, W. Verkes, Hunt, Lehman, Birch, Thornton, Huff, Webster, Clark, and Dinkle. A small admission fee will be charged, grandstand free. The game should prove interesting.

Blow Your Own Horn.

To be a success in these times we must own a horn and not if continually. To get a front seat we must walk in, push our way past slower men, and take the seat; and we must look as if we not only owned it, but had a mortgage on all the private boxes, and could occupy any one of them if we so desired. The man who wants to succeed must struggle for a front seat even if he has to jostle the real owner and put his umbrella down on his soft coat. Once in a while he may be set back where he belongs, but he will get in front of others than if he should wait to be invited forward.

The world has not time to analyze character, weigh merit and decide as to the relative ability of men. This is a fast, hurrying, rushing world of ours, and it is very much influenced by the value that a man sets on himself. If he says, "I am a great orator, or a noted scientist," the world is apt to take it for granted that he is, rather than go to the trouble of holding a civil service examination of his merits. If he says, "I am but a poor, weak worm of the dust," the world will say, "You look like it; get out of the way." The merchant who has pushed himself to the front through constant advertising will appreciate this, and the man who is a timid advertiser caught to find something in it to profit by.

ANSWERS AND QUESTIONS.

The McKinley Club Has Some for the Bi-Metalists.

[This column is conducted by the Northville McKinley Club.]

The silvertie contribution appearing in last week's "Record" is replete with biting sarcasm (?) but is decidedly lacking in facts, figures or arguments. In my previous article I made two assertions:

1st. That an average of $12,000 in actual money had for years met the business requirements of Northville.

2nd. That free coinage of silver meant the substitution of a 50 cent-dollar for our present 100 cent dollar.

Now, my silvertie friend, is my first proposition true or false? If you think it false, prove its falsity. Don't tell us about Leonidas, and the Charge of the Light Brigade, but give us some 19th century facts and figures. If Northville has had an average of more than $12,000 in actual money where has it been, and who has had it? If $12,000 or $8.00 per capita, has met our business requirements, then an average of $23.00 per capita for the entire country, is sufficient for its needs, and your claim of "too little money" is all bosh.

You ask if I was here in 1893 when the president of the Globe Co. had to go to Canada to borrow money, and do I know why he had to go there? No, I was not there, but I know why he went. It was because silverites this side the line had so destroyed confidence, that our home banks, to protect themselves and their depositors, were forced to curtail discounts. Crossing the Detroit river the president of the Globe Co. was on English ground, where for eighty years the gold standard has prevailed, and where, in consequence, panics like that of '93 are unknown. There are no silverites in Canada, and for this reason he could borrow there when he could not here.

Referring to my second proposition, you say that our present dollar is not a 100 cent but a 200 cent dollar, and that you propose giving us a 100 cent dollar. Here I am glad to see that we agree. We state it differently, but we agree that free coinage will give us a dollar of about half the value of the present dollar. From this point of agreement let me ask you one or two questions:

1st. How would the change affect existing contracts, obligations and agreements between the American people?

2nd. Would the 36,000,000 wage workers gain or lose by having a dollar one half the value of the present dollar?

3rd. Would the 50,000 employers of skilled labor gain or lose? Should they lose now would it affect their employees?

4th. Would the 15,000,000 Savings Bank depositors (mostly men of small means, as is evidenced by the fact that the average deposit is less than $100.00) gain or lose?

5th. Would the 5,000,000 investors in Building and Loan societies (all men of small means) gain or lose?

6th. Would the widows and orphans of those who have carried life insurance for years, and paid premiums on the old basis, gain or lose by the change?

7th. Would those receiving pensions gain or lose?

8th. Would the 700,000 retail merchants in the United States, the whose stock has been paid for in the old dollar, and whose outstanding accounts will be settled in the new dollar, gain or lose by the change?

9th. Just what by your honest opinion, will be benefited by the change you advocate?

10th. Who is your opinion will be injured?

11th. Is it morally right for congress to pass a law permitting a fellow to pay one half a just debt, and repudiate the other half?

The above questions are pertinent, and we as voters are entitled to a categorical answer. We are satisfied with the present standard; you advocate a change; therefore the burden of proof rests on you. Don't talk of Spartan heroism or British bravery. Convince yourself just now to facts. A little later in the season—after election for instance—we are willing to roam with Romulus, and soar with Socrates, and rip with Euripides, but just now we would like your answer to the questions propounded above. If you can answer them kindly do so, if you can't kindly say so.

FOR MORE THAN THIRTEEN YEARS MR. HOFFMAN HAS BEEN SUPERINTENDENT OF SPRING & CO'S CLOAK DEPARTMENT.

From the Democrat, Grand Rapids, Mich. One of the most familiar faces in Spring & Co's great department of Grand Rapids, Michigan, is that of Mrs. Hoffman, superintendent of the cloak department. For more than thirteen years Mrs. Hoffman has held this position and during that time she has made the acquaintance of many thousands of people, and her kind and obliging manner has won for her among the patrons of the firm the confidence and esteem of many.

Mrs. Hoffman was stricken down with rheumatism. In less than one week from the moment of the first attack she had lost the use of her limbs, and in relating to a Democrat reporter her condition at that time, she said: "My feet were swollen so large that it was difficult to tell whether there were toes on them or not. From the knee to the ankle the limb was swollen to twice its natural size and the pains suffered cannot be described. Then began a long course of medical treatment. First one doctor was tried and then another, making only a doubtful succession of failures, not one of them succeeding in even bringing temporary relief. In fighting the awful, maddening, excruciating pains made on the little accumulation that years of toil, frugality and economy had brought together, for while the doctors were unable to cure they were excessive in their charges.

"I should not be alive to-day, if it had not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was suffering greatly from an attack of female weakness, and nothing I had tried could give me relief, when by the advice of a friend I began the Compound. CHAPTER IX. (Continued)

Opposition was futile, but Constance's countenance was so downcast at the prospect of the excursion, that Edward made a pretext, before going out, to call her into the adjoining sitting-room. "How have I forfeited my place in your good graces?" he began, in playfulness, that was lost in earnestness before he finished his speech. "I have tried to persuade myself that your cold avoidance of me for weeks past, and your rejection of my services whenever it is possible for you to dispense with them, was in part, an untoward fancy of my own, and partly the result of your absorption in the dear duty that has demanded your time and thoughts. I have begun lately to have other fears—dreads lest I had unwittingly wounded or displeased you. Do me the justice to believe that, if this be so, the offense was unconscious."

"You have offered none—none whatever," interposed Constance, with cold emphasis. "I am sorry my manner has given rise to such apprehensions."

"That is not spoken, like the frank sister of a month ago," said Edward, retaining the hand she would have withdrawn. "I will not release you until you tell me what is the shadow upon the affection that was to me more dear than any other friendship, and which I dared hope was much to you, for one instant, yourself, and tell me all."

She was very pale, but in desperation, she tried to laugh. "You must not call me to account for my looks and actions nowadays, Edward. I think sometimes that I am not quite sane. I have gone through much suffering; been the prey of imaginations that almost deprived me of reason, besides enduring the real and present trial, and heaven knows how unready I was for it all!"

"One word, my dear girl, and my inquisition is over. Assure me honestly and without fear of wounding me, have you ever, in your most secret thought, blamed me for the casualty which so nearly widowed you? I did try, as you can bear me witness, to dissuade him whom we both love from the experiment, that cast him so far. The idea that you may have doubted this has pained me inexcessively."

"Dismiss the suspicion at once and forever!" Constance looked steadily into his face and spoke calmly. "The thought has never entered my mind. I blame no one for my trouble—excepting myself!"

Before she could divine his purpose, Edward had put his arm over her shoulder and pressed his lips to hers. "Let bygones be bygones!" he said, brightly and fondly. "We have too much to live and to hope for to waste time in nursing unhealthy surmises and fears."

"Oh!" The sharp little interjection came from the threshold of the door leading into the hall, where Miss Field was discovered in a fine attitude of bashful apology, faintly flavored with prudish consternation. "I did not dream you were here. I was on my way to my cousin's room!" she exclaimed, in a prodigious flutter of fingers and shoulders. "I beg a million pardons, I am sure."

"You need not beg one!" said the undaunted Edward, without releasing Constance. "Constance and I have been getting a trivial misunderstanding in a good boy-and-girl style—have just kissed and made up, and we now mean to be better friends than ever."

soul, the mate God meant for me, because, led by God's counsel, I wandered into a loveless connection with another. Which is the criminal bond—that obtained by my Maker, or the compact which has had no blessing save the approval of cold-hearted and mercenary mortals? Outwardly we must remain as we are, but who is defrauded if I dream of what might have been? If I love him for what he is in himself, not for what he is to me?"

"Then, shaking off the spell, she would loathe herself for the suggestions, and pray, in a blind, heathenish way, to Him who had sent her pain, to sustain her under it, to keep her from falling into the fouler mire of open defiance of her husband's claims upon her, really in word and act, to hold her fast to the semblance of right honor."

Parting from Edward at the outer entrance with a brief phrase of thanks for his kindness in accompanying her, she ran up to her husband's room and opened the door without knocking. A gentleman, whom she recognized as a prominent city lawyer, stood by the lounge with a paper in his hand. Two apparently clerks, were withdrawn a little into the background and a table bearing writing materials was between them and the others.

CHAPTER X.

HE dropped into a chair near the door, her heart palpitating with force that beat every drop of blood from her cheeks. Some sudden and awful change must have taken place while she was out to call for the presence of these men. Her frame was chill as with the shadow of death, but the overpowering thought that snate her was that her husband's approaching decease was the direct answer of an angry Judge to her wicked outcry against her fate and longings to escape it. In this grisly shape was the freedom to appear for which she had prayed. But she knew that when the cage was torn down she would feel like a murderer. She never forgot the short-lived horror of that moment.

Mr. Withers dismissed his visitors when the witnesses had affixed their names to the will, and they bowed themselves out, each noting, more or less furtively, as he passed, the dilated eyes and colorless face of the wife, and drawing his own conclusions therefrom.

She got up and walked totteringly forward at her husband's gesture. He was no paler than when she left him, and smiled more easily than was his habit, when he noticed the signs of her extreme alarm. "I was afraid you would be frightened if I talked to you hearing of making my will," he said, encouragingly. "To avoid this, I arranged that Mr. Hall should wait upon you while you were driving. He was behind his time, and your air back earlier than I anticipated. I regret the meeting only for your sake. Perhaps it is as well, however, that I should acquaint you with some of the provisions of the instrument you saw in Mr. Hall's hand."

"Please do not! I cannot bear to hear or speak of it!" protested Constance, the tears starting to her eyes. "It all seems so dreadful."

"It will not hasten my death, one hour," Mr. Withers was not quite ready to pass over without rebuke an absurd superstition he considered unworthy a rational being, even though the offender was his wife. "You shall know this. I made another will two years since, but circumstances have led me to regard it as injudicious, if not unfair. We business men are superior to the dread of looking forward to the one certain event of mortality. We calculate the probable effect of our demise, as we do other changes in the mercantile and social world. By the terms of my will, as I was about to remark, my property, with the exception of a legacy to Harriet Field, is divided equally between yourself and Edward. And he is appointed sole executor. In the event of my death he will be your nearest connection and safest adviser. I wish you to remember this. It is hardly to be expected that you, although a fair judge of character, should be as conversant with the qualities that fit him to assume these responsibilities as I am, who have been his business partner ever since he was twenty-one."

He was astonished that his wife, instead of rendering a submissive verbal acquiescence to his spoken and written decree, began to weep so violently as to hinder herself from listening or replying to his speech. She had never conducted herself in this irrational fashion before in his sight, and he was naturally exceedingly perplexed. Aware that any attempt to soothe her would be awkward work to him, he lay quiet for a minute, hoping the emotion would expend itself without his interference. Finally, he adjudged it to be but reasonable that she should get the bounds of her grief at a point somewhat short of hysterics or convulsions, and addressed her with the most stringent appeal he could think of.

"Really, Constance, your agitation is exciting me most unpleasantly. I fear I shall be feverish when the doctor calls, if this sort of thing is kept up."

"He did not mean to be unkind or selfish," He believed his health to be of supreme importance in her esteem, and that the recollection of this would set her to rights. The experiment succeeded to a charm. The sobbing flow of briny drops was stanch on the instant.

"Beg your pardon," stammered Constance, straightening herself up. "I will control myself better hereafter. It is time for your cordial. May I pour it out for you?"

It was inevitable that the confession she had meditated, while he told her of his arrangements for her future, betraying with a child's artlessness the perfectness of his trust in his brother and in herself, the full outflow of penitence and deprecation, and extenuation for pardon, of which the fears were but the type and premonition, should be checked by the generous reference to his personal discomfort. But the sudden and disagreeable reaction induced by it was hardly an excuse for the hardening of her heart and dulling of the sensibilities just now so tender, which filled her mind with sullen resentment against him who had repelled her confidence. "He will never understand me," she was as antagonistic as oil and water. She excused this by thinking, "The more closely I imitate his icy propriety the better matched we shall be. I was a fool to imagine anything else."

And thus slipped by the fairest chance of reconciliation and real union, that was ever offered, the ill-assorted pair. With Mr. Withers' returning strength everything seemed to fall back into the old train. Except that invitations were less frequent as the season waned, and that Edward and Constance passed fewer evenings abroad and more at home, that Mr. Withers rode to his office every morning and returned at noon, to spend the rest of the day upon the sofa in the library exchanging his after dinner for an easy chair in the parlor, the mode of life in the household varied in no important respect from what it had been prior to his accident.

IT WAS A WOMAN'S PRIVILEGE. Even to a Bank official She Would Not Tell Her Age.

It was a busy scene at a great bank, says the New York Herald. Long rows of women, some anxious and depressed looking, all of them with an unmistakable air of weariness, were waiting their turn with books to be presented for the semi-annual interest. A pompous and many buttoned official paced back and forth with a look of determination to keep order or die on his arduous voyage. The woman at the window was a new depositor and there was a longer wait than usual, while she answered all the questions relative to her generosity and that of her sisters and her cousins and her aunts—information which one must always give to a great bank before it will concede to receive and sometimes lose one's money.

At last came the fateful question: "What's your age?" A faint blush stole over the faded cheeks, the antiquated and corky eyes glistened with agitation as she murmured: "I'd rather not tell, please."

The bank clerk meant business. He had no sympathy with the maiden modesty of the trembling aspirant to financial dignity. "Oh, but you must tell," he replied, somewhat brusquely. The blush grew painful but there was still a leopold of escape. At least all the world should not know her age and raising herself on tiptoe so as to bring her face close to the window—of she was short of stature—she said: "May I whisper it, please?" and the woman behind her will never know how old she was.

A SHORT CUT TO HEALTH.

To try to cure constipation by taking pills is like going round in a circle. You never reach the point sought, but only get back to the starting point. A perfect natural laxative is Bacon's Colic King, the celebrated remedy for all heavy, bloated, stomach, liver and kidney diseases. It regulates the bowels. Mardock Bros., Northville, S. D. Chapin, Salem, will give you a sample package free.

Free Pills.

Send your address to H. E. Bucklen & Co., Chicago, and get a free sample box of Dr. King's New Life Pills. A trial will convince you of their merit. These pills are easy in action and are particularly effective in the cure of Constipation, and Stomach Headache. They relieve Liver troubles they have been proved invaluable. They are guaranteed to be perfectly free from every deleterious substance and to be purely vegetable. They do not weaken by their action, but by giving tone to the stomach and bowels greatly invigorate the system. Regular size 25c per box. Sold by Geo. C. Hueston.

C. P. Benton of Meads Mills is making extensive repairs on his barn, Mr. Boyce of Northville doing the work.

Condensed Testimony.

Chas. B. Hood, broker and manufacturer's agent, Columbus, Ohio, certifies that Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal as a cough remedy. J. D. Brower, Prop., St. James Hotel, Ft. Wayne, Ind., testifies that he has cured a cough of two years standing, caused by la grippe, by Dr. King's New Discovery. B. F. Merrill, Baldwinville, Mass., says that he has used and recommended it always cures. Mrs. Hemming, 222 E. 25th street, Chicago, always keeps it at hand and has no fear of cough, because it instantly relieves. Free trial bottles at Geo. C. Hueston's Drug Store.

The first arrival of Jack Frost in this part of the world occurred Saturday night, but did little damage except to pumpkin vines.

Dixon, the florist, received in one consignment from Pontiac last week 2,000 carnations and 1,000 violets for his Northville green house.

Lost.—In the village last week a Knights Templar charm with name engraved on same. Finder will be rewarded by returning same to Chas. Sessions, at shoe store.

Chicken thieves are said to be making some great catches on the base line just west of the village. Andrew Johnson, Samuel Wilkinson, and "Dok" Butler's coops are among the sufferers.

The board of equalization at Lansing last week asked Wayne county for a $15,000,000 raise, making it $205,000,000 instead of 190 as reported by the board of supervisors. Old Oakland received a $400,000 increase.

E. B. Power, formerly of this place and late of Walled Lake, has engaged in the undertaking business in Milford. Mr. Power is a genial, obliging gentleman who will win friends in any community. He is thoroughly conversant in the undertaking business and is sure to please his patrons.

There are several beautiful beds of rag weed and other like flowers in various parts of the city, particularly along Plymouth avenue, which are now ripe enough to pluck. If the city officials intend to gather them in before a freeze strikes town they will be obliged to soon commence the job.

Northville's last ball game for the season will doubtless be that of Sept. 30 on the Milford fair grounds with the home team for a $25.00 purse offered by the fair association. The agreement specifies that no players except those belonging to the respective towns shall take part in the game. The players from here will doubtless be German, Ambler, Yerkes, Clark, Webster, Lewis, Hull, Thornton, Hunt.

Rev. J. H. Herbenet will be formally installed into the Detroit Presbytery at the Presbyterian church here next Thursday evening. The installation service will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Patterson of Detroit. Rev. Dr. Gelston of Ann Arbor will deliver the charge to the pastor and Rev. Mr. Wilson of Milford the charge to the people. Rev. Mr. Wallace of Detroit will act as moderator of the Presbytery.

Prof. Fred Taylor, who was mentioned as giving a financial talk at the open house last week, is a professor of political economy in the U. of M. and not merely instructor as stated. Mr. Taylor's talk here was in the way of facts and figures, he having nothing to say relative to either political party. While not posing as an orator at all, Mr. Taylor presents his arguments in a very clear and explicit manner, and people here in general were well pleased with his lecture.

It strikes the editor of the Northville Record strangely, that when he is absent never a basket of peaches, apples, pears or grapes finds its way into his den. The case is puzzling, but solvable. When the editor leaves his office, the people begin watching their fruit, and continue till his return.—Adrian Press.

The Press man does not quite see the point. The item was coined and promulgated by the "force" in charge of the paper while the "boss" was on a week's vacation.

Work on the new U. S. fish hatchery is progressing as rapidly as can be expected. The building is all enclosed and the shingling is completed. The contractors are now at work on the inside and expect to have everything finished by the time called for in the contract. Ald. Lansing is rather doing double work these days—sitting as juror in the circuit court at Detroit and assisting his partner, Charley Smith, in looking after the work on the government buildings here at the same time.

With the Northville band as an attraction last year the state fair at Grand Rapids was a great success both financially and otherwise; as also it was the year previously in Detroit with the same musical feature. This year a Grand Rapids aggregation secured the fair association employing them and the consequence was a half advertised fair, light attendance and a financial failure. It is safe to say that the fair managers will have a hard next year that will draw a crowd and not keep people away as they did this season and it went half from Grand Rapids either.

Quarterly Conference at the Methodist church Saturday evening, 26th. Quarterly meeting at the church Sunday evening and Presiding Elder, C. T. Allen will preach.

Prof. Brown, phonologist, lectures Saturday night. Subject, "Twin Evils." On Monday evening he will lecture to men on social purity and unnecessary evils. No lecture to night.

The Northville base ball club has won 17 out of the 22 games played this season. We guess they are just about the "best that ever came down the pike around the diggins"—Holly Advertiser.

After laboring more or less for two weeks with contrary joints of stove pipe and awkward tack hammers the Methodists' new pastor ought to be in exceptionally good humor Sunday morning.

The Michigan Methodist conference at Lansing having voted to admit women to the general conference. The women should reciprocate by admitting men to the ten-cent church socials and weekday prayer meetings of the church.

One of the 4th grade pupils of our school when asked by his teacher who was the present gubernatorial incumbent vouchsafed the reply that Clarence Hudson was. The same pupil thought Piogree was the chief executive of the nation.

It is noticed that the high price of coal has led a number of business-men as well as private citizens to replace their coal stoves with wood burners. With the best body stove wood at $1.50 a cord and coal at $3.50 a ton the thing to do is to establish a wood basis.

Don't forget that the Euterpe Concert Co. will be here Oct. 7. There will probably not be a better troupe here this season and no one should miss the opportunity of hearing them. Tickets will be on sale next week and can be obtained from Ladies of the Library Association at popular prices. See locals in next issue.

The Farmington band has secured the contract to furnish the music at the Milford fair next week. This speaks well for the young organization as well as for their tutor, Prof. Wingard of this place. Prof. Crocker, leader of the Northville band, is to assist Mr. Wingard and the Oakland county boys during the fair.

D. M. Ferry & Co., the Detroit seed men, are making a kick through the courts against the free distribution of seeds by the government, claiming it will injure their business by $20,000. Ferry & Co., during the year, injures the printing business by using free printed government envelopes but we never heard of the firm making any objection against the free distribution of printed matter. We don't see where Ferry's kick is coming. If congress wants to supply the farmers with free seeds, farmers can stand the $20,000 gift all right enough. The only thing left for "D. M." to do is to sell those $20,000 worth of seeds to Uncle Sam.

We notice by this week's Lapeer papers that the Presbyterian society of that place of which Rev. J. M. Belding formerly of this place is pastor, had a big church opening there Sunday; it being the first service since the church was newly repaired and painted. The Democrat says: "The abundance of massive white and pink asters, hundreds in number, piled and heaped in billowy banks, were the loving gift of the young people of Northville to Mr. Belding, their former pastor, and constituted the sole decoration. These present declare they never beheld such a wealth of choice asters. Many of them measured three or four inches across. The church looked beautiful, the congregation happy and the pastor both morning and evening was at his best."

Some people do not seem to understand that good etiquette demands that when they have guests from abroad it is their duty to see that proper mention of the fact is made in the local paper. This is done in all cities by leaders of society and the Sunday papers each week contain hundreds of names of people in and out of town classified in the society columns. The same duty is just as important in Northville as it is in the large cities. It is something to which guests are entitled. It is not snobbish or a way of getting your name in the paper as some people are foolish enough to think but it is a mark of respect and highly proper. We shall not mention this subject again. We have a public item box in the post office and office in the opera house block where such items are thankfully received. The same rule will also apply to Northville people visiting away from home.
