REGULAR WHALE.

That Was the Size of Northville's Celebration.

ABIG CROWD OF HAPPY, ENTHUSIASTIC PEOPLE.

Balloon Ascension and Drop Was a Thrilling Event.

Trades Parade a Beauty: Oration, Brilliant; Sports Delightful.

An ideal day; a glorious Fourth! Never did the dawn break upon a more beautiful day than Monday. The news of Shafter's retreat of Sunday night coupled with the knowledge of severe loss to our soldiers dampened the ardor of the people but a trifle for they remembered that Dewey's 30 minutes for breakfast was but to renew the battle all the more successfully. But when the morning papers brought word of Sampson's "Fourth of July gift to the American people" the enthusiasm was unbounded, and all day long all topics were prefaced with "Well, Sampson did he 'dewey' thing to 'em either, didn't he?"

It was just one fourth of a second after twelve Sunday night when the first 4th of July cannon cracker was let loose. The town clock had hardly commenced striking the midnight hour when the noise of the battle began, and it never ceased until well towards Tuesday morning. Asearly as eight o'clock people began to arrive in town from the country, and neighboring towns while every train arriving at the depot deposited a coach load or more of people, so that when the trades parade was ready to start at 10:00 o'clock the streets were thronged.

The parade was one of the most pleasing events of the day, and its success was due largely to the efforts of the chairman of that committee, L. A. Beal and his valuable assistants. It was divided into two sections, and up through gayly decorated streets the long march commenced. The first was headed by the Farmington band, the place of honor, followed by the Northville fire company and the second by the Northville band.

In the parade the Globe Company had three floats, showing their furniture, Columbia refrigerators and American bells. The J. A. Dubur people had a huge load of saw-logs and a large load of bushel crates. M. S. Ambler had a load of agricultural implements. The Dubur Lumber Co. was represented by a float of red cedar shingles. T. G. Richardson had a very pretty float of carpets and wall paper, the arrangement of Mr. Hagen.

Schram & Lockhart had a big load of pumps, agricultural implements and haggies. Woodman & Cray's meat market was represented by a very catchy float. A very prettily arranged wagon, with meat upon the block and Mr. Woodman in a neat suit of white, in command, was driven by little Joe Moore, dressed and blacked as an Alabama coon.

E. J. Cox & Co. had a prettily arranged load of stoves, tools and general hardware, while from the rear a boy distributed 3-foot rules. U. J. Perkins & Co.'s store was represented by a huge chicken coop, filled with boys, labeled "We grow for Perkins & Co." Carpenter, Yerkes & Harmon had a unique float advertising their plumbing and repair business. The float was a complete shop filled with the eight workmen, each wearing a tin helmet, all at work. They distributed souvenir cards.

Fry Bros. had two wagons in the float filled with well arranged groceries and provisions. C. C. Chadwick had one of his Deering binders all set up and running. R. E. Purdy's wagon was covered with a huge umbrella, in front of which appeared two happy and prosperous looking people labeled "We trade at Purdy's," while in the rear sat a somber-faced maiden, poorly clad, bearing the banner of "I don't!"

The Northville Dovel works were represented by a neat load of their celebrated dovel pins. The Phoenix Milling Co. had an attractive wagon. It was a neatly arranged load of flour in the center of which sat Mr. Holcomb's pretty little girl. The wagon was tritely labeled "The Flower (Flour) of the Family." One of the funniest things in the parade was Roy Hill with his six weeks old calf harnessed to a little wagon in which he rode in the rear of the procession. The little "bosy" was apparently as well grove as an old horse.

The exercises at the grove were delightful and inspiring. The program was: Music by the band—prayer by Chaplain Ward—solo by M. Dolph—reading declaration of independence—maie chorus—introduction of speaker, Capt. E. P. Allen of Ypsilanti by the president of the day, Capt. Simonds. The oration by Captain Allen was a powerfully good one—brilliant and to the point. It appealed particularly to the young men, as he dwelt at length upon the present war and its benefits. The captain was listened to by a large crowd of people and was repeatedly encored.

Following the exercises in the grove the fire company made an exhibition one block run from headquarters, laid fifty feet of hose and had the water on in one minute.

The balloon which was to have gone up at 1:00 o'clock was delayed by bursting of holes in the cloth until 3:00 o'clock at which time the ascent and parachute drop was successfully made. Prof. Elliott's assistant went up about 2,000 feet and dropped safely down near the ladies' library building. The thrilling event was witnessed by thousands of people.

In the fried cake eating contest Lee Passage of Plymouth took 1st prize; F. Black 2d; Will Mahoney 3d. Passage also captured 1st prize in the Boys race and 3d in the Potato. In the latter Steve Jewell of Plymouth got 1st prize and F. Babcock 2d. Earl Lovejoy of Milford won the $3.00 1st prize in the Tub race. In the Boys race Roy Hill got the second prize of $1.00. In the Night shirt race Asa Lyon won the 1st prize of $2.00.

In the amateur handicap bicycle race, through some misunderstanding, the judges allowed Lyndon of Plymouth, a well known professional, to enter and of course he came out ahead, with Johnson a close second. Johnson protested against awarding the prize to Lyndon and to make an amicable settlement and avoid possible hard feelings all around, the judges, after consulting with the executive committee, fixed things up by giving the prize wheel to Johnson and then made a compromise settlement with Lyndon.

The ball game was largely attended, and it was Plymouth's from the start, tho it was devoid of the usual kicking between the clubs of the two towns. Plymouth selected the umpire and made the only big kick during the 6th inning when the umpire called a fair ball that they contended was a foul and though the score was 12 to 4 in their favor they put up their usual baby act of refusing to play, much to the disgust of all the Plymouth people and to the amusement of the Northville crowd. Finally the manager of the Northville end informed the Plymouth boys they would forfeit their share of the gate receipts unless they "played ball" and they decided their pocket books were of some consideration and the game was finished, the score standing 20 to 7 in Plymouth's favor.

The bicycle parade was interlarded with by the lateness of the ball game and the balloon ascension and it had to be abandoned. The larger portion of the callithumpian parade also got lost in the final shuffle, but the fireworks attachment was exciting enough for almost any one. A lot of people who are usually credited with common sense persisted in driving and leaving horses about the streets all day, and during the fireworks several lively runaways were only averted by prompt action on the part of the musicians who led the procession. As the parade got opposite the Union block one of the rockets set fire to the decorations but a small stream from a hand hose quickly extinguished it. A dance in the rink and a show in the opera house finished up the evening and everybody went home tired but satisfied.

Stay a Few Days at Ottawa Beach Hotel.

If you can't afford or for other reasons don't care to go to the far away and more expensive resorts, try a few days or weeks at Ottawa Beach. Its a delightful place, easy to reach by rail, only 30 miles from Grand Rapids, on Lake Michigan and has all the advantages in the way of bathing beach, boating, fishing, etc., etc., that any resort has. Write to the manager of the Ottawa Beach Hotel for rates and see how moderate they are. 43w2 Geo. DeHaven, G. P. A.

The Best Flour is none too good. Plymouth Rock is best. Ask for it.

CHURCH DEDICATED.

The German Lutheran Edifice Was Last Sunday.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES BY REVS. RETZ, PRICE AND PASTOR.

Regular Services Will Be Held There Hereafter.

After a long and tedious delay caused by building complications through a misunderstanding with the contractors, the German Lutheran society dedicated their new church last Sunday, with impressive ceremonies, the program being carried out as published in last week's Record.

Pastor Reinhardt conducted the regular service at 10:00 o'clock in the presence of a large gathering of people. The service was of especial interest to the congregation who for the first time were gathered for worship in their own beautiful, cozy home.

The dedication proper was conducted by Rev. Chas. Retz of the celebrated St. Luke's church of Detroit. At 2:00 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Price of Detroit conducted a special service in English in which he praised the people of Northville in general for their liberality in aiding in the building of the church. For the members and congregation of the church, it was a day long to be remembered.

Music was furnished by the Opera House orchestra and the Ladies Aid society served a sumptuous dinner for the hungry multitude under a huge canvas adjoining the edifice.

A NOVI PIONEER.

ALMOND D. BROWN PASSED AWAY ON SUNDAY.

Had Lived Half a Century in the Home Where He Died.

Novi, Mich., July 7, 1898.—Staff Cor.—Again has come Death's time of reaping and his gathering this time has been among the ripened sheaves. On Sunday, July 3d, Almond D. Brown, one of Novi's widely known and worthy residents, passed into the life beyond, laying down the burden of his three score years and ten in the home which had been for him the scene of a half century of honest, industrious, respected existence, and where but little more than two weeks before he gave a dearly loved daughter into the keeping of her chosen life companion.

He had been ailing for several weeks, but the worst was not apprehended until quite recently, when he commenced rapidly failing, in spite of all that anxious hearts and loving hands could do to stay the approach of the "last enemy." He was born in Hannibal, Oswego county, N. Y., Oct. 11, 1827. Sixty-five years ago he became a resident of Michigan, and fifteen years thereafter came to the home from whence he was carried to his last resting place. On May 6, 1855, he was married to Louisa Ettrican of Novi, and they became the parents of three children, all of whom are left to comfort the mother in her bereavement. They are Mrs. Mary Ambler of Northville, Mrs. Alma Gibson of Wixom and a son, Seymour, who is still at home.

Mr. Brown was held in the highest esteem in the community where he lived so long, and a large company of neighbors and friends assembled Tuesday afternoon at the residence, where the funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. S. Boyden of Kalamazoo, the burial taking place at Novi.

Young lady, don't you know our address?

One of the boys at Chickamauga writes in part: "I will not commit myself by saying that I want to come home, but if they tell me to go home I will not have to be ordered a second time. I promise you that if I ever get through loving this country I will never love another."—Ann Arbor Democrat.

To judge from the incongruous and disagreeable costumes in which people appeared at the fire, one might be led to suppose that Millfordites possessed very scanty wardrobes. Very few stopped to make a complete toilet.—Times.

Judging by its elaborate report of the fire none of the Times' force waited to comb their hair or put on clean cuffs.

The other day a young woman was rambing along one of the country roads near here, says the Vicksburg News. She was dressed smartly, she thought, and when she met a small barelegged urchin carrying a bird's nest with eggs in it she did not hesitate to stop him. "You are a wicked boy," she said. "How could you rob that nest? No doubt the poor mother is now grieving for the loss of her eggs." "Oh, she don't care," replied the urchin, edging away; "she's up in your hat."

The following is from the Fourth of July edition of the Belleville Enterprise: "While Mrs. Butler, the wife of our worthy postmaster and merchant, was in the store last Saturday she heard a chicken peep and commenced to investigate, finally locating it in a crate of eggs. On examination she found an egg that was picked and the chick struggling for liberty. She took the egg and placed it under a neighbor's hen and before night had the chicken out of the shell and at present writing is doing nicely."

Zera Fisher, a bachelor of 38 years and Miss May Colby a blue eyed miss of 20, both living near Milford, applied at the county clerk's office last week for a license to marry, believing the best time to marry is when both parties are agreed, sent for a justice to tie the knot, but after waiting over an hour for him to arrive, finally procured a common everyday preacher, who performed the ceremony in the presence of the Court house officials, and sent them home happy. "Aa" a fisher Zera has made quite a catch for a "boy."

The Flour Situation.

In an interview with R. C. Yerkes, he puts the local flour situation in this light: "We pay out" he says, "thousands of dollars annually for produce. A large part of that money goes sooner or later into the cash drawers of the business houses of this place. Here is an illustration: Farmer A brings a load of wheat to our mills and gets, say $30.00 in exchange for it. Now we have to a certain extent been instrumental in bringing that man into town and putting $50.00 into his pocket. That's half the battle. The business men should be able to do the rest. Now farmer B takes his load to another town and gets say, $50.00. Now where is the trouble? Right here: He has got his $50.00 in his pocket but he is in the wrong town. If we receive the trade and encouragement of the business men, we in turn call on the farmer for more of his produce. If through lack of patronage, our mills do not grind to their full capacity, we cannot to that extent bring to their town the produce and money of the surrounding country. The cut we have made in flour is not made to injure any business man, nor will it. Its only result should be to bring more trade, more people and more money into the village."

ORDINANCE NO. 40.

An Ordinance Relative to the Interment and Removal of Bodies from Oakwood Cemetery.

The Village of Northville ordains

SEC. I.—That the Superintendent of the Village Cemetery called Oakwood, in the village of Northville, Michigan, shall have the exclusive control of the interments and the removal of remains from the burial grounds of Oakwood Cemetery under the direction of the Cemetery trustees.

SEC. II.—That no interments or removals of remains shall be done until a permit is granted by the Village clerk, and such permit shall bear the seal of the village and shall be directed to the Superintendent of said Cemetery, who shall open and close the graves, or cause the same to be done, and he, the Superintendent, shall direct any or all such burials or removals, and he shall be responsible to the Board of Cemetery Trustees.

SEC. III.—Any violation of this Act by any person or persons not authorized by the Superintendent shall be punished by a fine or imprisonment, or by both, such fine and imprisonment as the Laws of Michigan direct and the Common Council may impose in this act, but which shall not be less than five dollars fine or thirty days' imprisonment in the Detroit House of Correction.

SEC. IV.—Any and all acts contravening this act are hereby repealed, and this act shall take immediate effect.

Adopted and ordered published this fifth day of July, A. D. 1898.

Plymouth will raise $4,188.00 by taxation this year.

Ira W. Case aged 79, a pioneer Brighton merchant, died last week.

An old people's service was held Sunday in the Milford Methodist church.

The assessment roll shows the valuation of personal property and real estate in Wayne to be $302,281.00.

Engene Grave of Clarenceville and Miss Lottie Osburn of Redford celebrated the Fourth by getting married. Emory Heath of Ypsilanti and Miss Hattie McAfee of Wayne did the same thing.

If the Wyandotte city ordinance is good for aught there is to be no needless like riding on the side walks on the sabbath now after dark and all speed is limited to 6 miles per hour.

Another proof that Wyandotte is a slow-going, sleepy old town.

Lack of transportation to Detroit need never cause anybody inconvenience in Pontiac, there being 40 trains a day between those two cities.

Prof. McNamara, for five years past principal of the Brighton school, has entered the newspaper field, having purchased a plant at Deerfield.

Property-owners in Clarkston will be exempt from village taxes this year, as the treasury contains funds enough to run the corporation for a year.

June 22, Miss Bernice Mae Davey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Davey of Livonia, formerly of Detroit, was married to Mr. Adelbert Knapp of Plymouth.

The First National Bank of Flint claims that money is too plentiful to warrant the continuance of four per cent on time deposits, and now pays but three per cent.

The Brighton Argus says a deathlike silence has pervaded Willow Brook since T. H. Williams sold his farmhouse "number" of high blooded chickens, turkeys and geese. The Argus main will no longer forage around Willow Brook.

During the council meeting in Delray last week, just as the question of hydrants was to be considered two of the councilmen bolted through the door, involving the adjournment of the whole body, owing to the breaking of a quorum.

A serious accident which may prove fatal, occurred on the D. Y. & A. A. railroad last week. James Avery was crossing the track, and being quite deaf, he did not hear the gong, and was struck by an electric car, hurling him 40 feet into the air. He was injured internally.

A thoughtful clergyman in a nearby town is quoted as saying that the most alarming signs of today, those which are the most deceitful in their influence and the most soul destroying in their ultimate effects, are "the love of money on the part of the men, and the love of display on the part of the women." This may apply to such towns as Milford and Plymouth but to Northville—never!

For some time an "ice" wagon from Washtenaw's mineral spring town has been doing a "land office" business in South Lyon. A dozen or more bottles of a golden brown colored liquid went with each cake of the congealed liquid, and all went "merry as a marriage bell" until last week when ice was left at a wrong house and now the authorities are sampling the article to see whether it is "Pale Select" or "Especially for Family Use."

A teacher in the Addison public schools received the following note explaining the absence of one of the pupils the day before: "Please excuse Henry for absence yesterday. Him and me got a chance at a ride to a funeral in a carriage, and I let him stay at home, as he never rode in a carriage, and I let him stay at home, as he never rode in a carriage, and never went to a funeral nor had any other pleasures. So please excuse."

While a Holly family were at dinner recently, 16 relatives from different parts of the country came in to visit them.

The funny part of the affair is that it was entirely unpremeditated as the visitors just happened in one or two at a time.—Pontiac Post.

If 16 relatives visit us at one time they will not get off with a light sentence on the plea of non-premeditation.

Results of the New Cure for Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

Dr. Horton said recently in an article on "Dyspepsia," that very few people today possess a healthy sound stomach. And this class requires to aid to digestion, while the other portion, which figure fully 80 per cent, ought not to force digestion in a diseased stomach, as blood produced in such conditions will eventually contaminate the whole system. Medicine has been comparatively a standstill as to a reliable treatment for stomach diseases in all of their manifold forms, although many preparations are offered, but sufferer's yet their use is usually more perilous than delay.

But the saying that "necessity is the mother of invention" seems evidently verified in Prof. Drake's production of his marvelous treatment known as Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer. This well-spring of life is flowing into thousands of homes today; many who have tried nearly everything with little or no relief, are now rejoicing over the results of this new method treatment for indigestion—each treatment, with a speed and permanent cure well beyond the result. For sale by Geo. C. Hueston, Northville. A book on Stomach and Nerve troubles, their symptoms and cure, given free for the asking at the above mentioned store.

"Very well, my dear; do just as you like; you know best of course. I will say that you do not feel very well. Go to your room, by all means. I hope you will soon be better. Now try to cheer up; it will be all right. I will see to this difficulty with your husband for you."
She looked up at him proudly.
"You must not interfere, papa. I shall never return to him now!"
He looked pityingly at the white face.

"You appear very ill, Hildred. Is there nothing that I can do for you?"
"Nothing," she replied, coldly. In her heart she felt bitterly angry with her father. She had trusted him; he had misled her. She did not offer to kiss him or to touch his hand, but went quietly out of the room and upstairs, leaving him with some very unpleasant thoughts.
It had not been an agreeable interruption to his breakfast, but he tried to think little of it. It was only a quarrel, after all, and his daughter had done nothing wrong. He should make it all right in a few seconds when he saw the earl. He wrote to him before he went to the city, telling him that his wife had reached home safely, but was looking very ill.
The rest of that day Hildred remained in her room, and on the morning following she did not come downstairs. It was afternoon when Arley Kamsome, with a face as pale as death, asked for admittance to her apartment. She bade him enter, and he did so, with an open letter in his hand. It was her husband's writing, she perceived.
"You have deceived me," said her father, sternly; "you told me that you had hidden nothing from me. Your husband tells me that he has hidden you here, because you shot Lady Hamilton on the evening of the thirty-first—shot her with intent to murder, and that you confessed your guilt."

Without a word or a murmur she looked at him, and then fell like one dead at his feet.

CHAPTER XLIII.
HE young countess, as she stood behind the alder trees of Ravensmere, had heard the sound of the shot; she was too dazed with her own grief and misery to note the direction from which it had proceeded. She had fancied that something went whirring through the trees. That something was the ball that had been fired at Lady Hamilton, which pierced her shoulder and would have pierced her heart had it gone in the direction in which it had been aimed. For the moment Lord Caraven had been too bewildered to know what had happened; what he was saying in reality to his guest was that he liked his wife's maiden name better than any he had ever heard. Lady Hamilton, who never liked to hear any one praised but herself, asked at once what it was. He had answered, "Hildred Ransome," and those were the words Lady Caraven had heard. They had been no sooner uttered than Lady Hamilton fell on his shoulder with a faint, low cry—a cry that seemed almost simultaneous with the firing of the shot.
The earl knew she had been shot, but by whom or why he could not guess. He laid her down for one minute while he looked around; then it was that he saw the white face of his wife. He jumped to the conclusion that she had done it, she, and no other, was there on the spot. She had even to himself avowed her jealousy. She had followed them; and in the madness of her folly had shot Lady Hamilton. No other idea occurred to him. He said to himself at once that it was so, and he implicitly believed it. He had rushed to her and told her that she was "a guilty woman." She had owned it. But they were speaking of different kinds of guilt. He meant the guilt of murder; she meant the guilt of being a spy upon him. No doubt of her guilt relieved his mind. Even in that first bewildered moment he had said to himself that she should never enter his house again, but that he would shield her because she bore his name. He had told her to remain where she was while he carried the senseless lady to the house.
There was terrible consternation. He had the presence of mind to throw the agitated inquirers off the scent. He said that the poachers were out—must be out, for a chance shot fired in the woods had wounded Lady Hamilton. Some of the gentlemen staying at the house went with the keepers to scour the woods. Dire were the threats of vengeance as to the rogue who had done the mischief. Meanwhile a groom was dispatched to Court Raven to summon a doctor—the wounded lady had been taken to her room and laid on the bed. At first the earl was frightened lest the wound should prove mortal; but one of the ladies staying at the castle, who knew something of surgery, declared that the wound was not dangerous, and that the ball could soon be extracted. After hearing that the earl returned to his unhappy young wife. His first great fear that she had been guilty of murder had been removed; there remained the fear that the wound should prove dangerous in the end. It was better, he thought, than she should go away at once.

He made two announcements to his household, which no one even thought of connecting. The first and most startling was, of course, that Lady Hamilton had been shot accidentally—a chance shot—through why a ball cartridge had been used was a puzzle—supposed to have been fired by poachers in the wood; the second was that Lady Caraven had been suddenly summoned to her father's home in London. No one dreamed of connecting the two announcements, and in the disordered state of the household it never occurred to any of the guests to question the servants as to when the countess had gone. She had been sent for after dinner, and the apologies that the earl made were deemed quite sufficient. Some of the guests indeed said that it was as well Lady Caraven was out of the way, as she would probably have been greatly distressed. To this day the earl is uncertain what in his panic he said or did. The only idea quite clear to him was that he must shield the woman who bore his name.
It was not very long before the doctor arrived, and then all alarm was at an end. He found the ball at once; it had not gone very deep into the shoulder. It was extracted and the wound bound up.
Then lovely Lady Hamilton raised her golden head and asked, languidly:
"Shall I be very ill, doctor?"
"No, I hope not. You will suffer a little pain—nothing much, I trust."
"Shall I be ill for a long time?" she asked.
"Ah, me, how little I dreamed that I was coming to Ravensmere to be shot!"
"It is very unfortunate," said the doctor; "but I do not think you will be ill very long, Lady Hamilton. You must take heart."
"To think that of all the people in the world they should select me! I suppose it was quite an accident, though. They were poachers, I am told. Now, doctor, I want to ask you a very serious question."
The doctor seemed to imply by his manner that he was all attention.
"I shall be very happy to answer it, if it lies in my power," he said.
"Tell me, shall I lose—that is, will my temporary seclusion interfere at all with what I may call my 'good looks'?"
He told himself that the amusement he felt must be carefully concealed.
"I think," he replied, confidentially, "that I may reassure your ladyship. I do not see how it can possibly affect you in that fashion, and the needed rest will be most beneficial to you."
Then she was content to remain in her room, not suffering very much pain.
The keepers had made strenuous efforts to find the poachers, but they had evidently made their escape, frightened doubtless at what they had done. No trace of them could be found.
It was with a sense of relief that Lord Caraven went to his room that night. He wanted to be alone to think over the events of the day. He found himself dwelling less on the terrible fact that his wife had shot Lady Hamilton than on the wonderful fact that she loved him.
"I have gone mad—I love you—let me die!"
The words haunted him like the refrain of a song. He could not sleep. All night the pale, passionate, beautiful face was before him. The words rang in his ears as they had rung when he saw Hildred in the starlight, pleading, praying, accusing him, all in one vehement storm of words.

"SHALL I BE VERY ILL?"
So he would see her until he died. He felt as though she had been a stranger to him until then. The passionate love which had flamed into hot jealousy had been hidden under a cold, calm exterior. How she loved him. He had never seen any woman's face light up so splendidly. For the first time in his life he had owned to himself that by the side of her magnificent beauty blonde loveliness faded into nothing. He wondered that he had lived so long in the house with her, so long under one roof, yet he had not noticed that which every one else remarked.
He was struck most of all by the fact that she loved him. It did not matter about anything else. He had read her truth and love in her face. She loved him as no one else ever would or could; and it flashed across him that the wife he had neglected and despised was, notwithstanding what she had done, one of the noblest women in the world. If it had not been different, if he had but thought more of her before this happened! How she must have loved him to let herself drift into such a crime! Was there any one who had ever loved him half so well?

"I wish it had never happened," he said to himself. "She is a noble woman in spite of all, and I—well, I could have loved her, but now she must never return."
Yet it showed how strongly his feelings were swayed when he thought far less of wounded Lady Hamilton than of the fact that his wife loved him.
He could not sleep or rest. Never had his pillow seemed so hard, his thoughts so troublesome. The excitement had been too much for him. Wherever he went, whatever he did, his thoughts were with Hildred. Had she reached Arley Ransome's house? Had he acted wisely in letting her go alone? Would any clew to her guilt ever be found? These questions followed him; haunted him, pursued him. If he went to talk to any of his visitors, the conversation was sure to turn upon the poachers and Lady Hamilton.
Wearied of it all he sought refuge with Sir Raoul in his room; and the old soldier noted with concern how worn and haggard the handsome earl looked.

CHAPTER XLIII.
LET me stay with you, Raoul," said the earl on entering his room; "my guests tease me to death. One hears of nothing but Lady Hamilton and the poachers. I have had to tell the story over and over again, until I am fairly tired of it. Let me find rest here."
Sir Raoul looked at the earl's haggard face.
"Poor boy," he said, "it is rather hard for you, certainly. I promise you that I will mention neither Lady Hamilton nor the poachers."
"Poachers!" replied the earl, contemptuously. "Surely you—"
He paused; he had been on the brink of betraying the secret that he had sworn never to reveal.
Sir Raoul laughed.
"It seems to me," he said, "that you are just as bad as any one else. You cannot keep away from the topic."
"We will discuss the weather, the last new book, politics, the papers—anything," proposed the earl; and then he added: "That reminds me—some version of this story is sure, I suppose, to get abroad. The papers will make a sensational affair of it."
"I thought we were to avoid the topic," said Sir Raoul quietly. "Now you have touched upon it again."
"And to make matters worse," remarked the earl, with a gesture of weary despair, "here comes the doctor."
Dr. Randall entered the room unannounced and in great haste.
The earl sprang to his feet at the sound of his agitated voice, his face growing pale and anxious.
"Surely," he said, "Lady Hamilton is not worse?"
"No; she seems better. It is not about Lady Hamilton that I want you, Lord Caraven. I was sent for the moment I left here in behalf of the man who used to get us your steward—John Blantyre."
"John Blantyre," said the earl, vaguely. "Is he ill?"
The subject did not interest him very much—indeed, he thought it trivial amidst the excitement of his own affairs.
"No, not ill in the common acceptance of the term," answered the doctor. "He is dying, I fear."

"Ste-raw-berries, nice ripe ste-raw-berries," shouted the street vender as his horse jogged slowly through Bagley avenue. "How much are they?" asked the pretty young housewife who had halted the peddler by waving a towel. "Ten cent a quart, mam. All Michigan strawberries, and the dew's on 'em yet, mam." "But I want a bushel. I'm going to have a sort of strawberry festival just among my relations, and I wouldn't run out of them for the world. How much for a bushel?" "Three and a half, mam." "Too much. You'll have to do better than that or I'll try some one else."
"I'll throw off a quarter," he said, and she nodded so that her voice might not betray her exultation. The he carried in thirty-two of the little measures that have the waistband about two inches from the bottom, received his money, and did not linger. Three minutes later the little woman rushed in the street, her eyebrows knitted, and her dimpled hands clinched, one over a lead pencil and the other over a crumpled piece of paper. But the peddler had vanished.—Detroit Free Press.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident of which Mr. J. Oliver of Philadelphia was the subject, is narrated as follows: I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying Electric Bitters, and to my great joy and surprise the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim. No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents per bottle at Geo. C. Hueson's Drug Store.

The sinking of the French liner steamer came just in time for Detroit newspapers' "scare head" men. There was a full in the war operations and the "head line man" was at the end of his rope when the disaster occurred.

Two dozen ladies from the village gave Mrs. George Clark a "surprise" at her home west of the village on Wednesday afternoon in honor of her sister, Mrs. Mary Merrill of Massachusetts. They had the biggest kind of a time imaginable.

The only casualty reported here during the Fourth was that young Steve Jewel of Plymouth got his foot under a barrel which a "strong man" was lifting as an exhibit near the village hall and had a couple of toes flattened out. No bones were broken.

Rogers street residents want their street name changed to "Dewey" street. It will next be in order for residents of other parts of the village to ask for Schley, Sampson and Hobson streets and before the war is over there may be Staifer and other heroes.

Those in a position to know at Washington say there is sure to be another regiment, the 36th, raised from Michigan and in that case the Northville company is certain to be mustered in. In the face of these facts the Northville boys are very foolish to scatter into the regiment now being recruited at Island Lake, when in a few weeks they can all go in a company by themselves.

Prof. Bliss, who married the preceptress of the Northville school, and then was chief Cadet of the educational facilities of the village for six years, took a situation elsewhere, and last week was tendered a goodbye reception, at which they "set up" the biggest kind of a program. There were speeches, music and toasts galore, and some over. Among the other toasts was on "The Press." We were unable to reply. Our heart was too full, our sense of gratitude, and our fulgent modesty overcame us to the extent that we could only be silent. In fact, we were not present, but the Record man was and we shall never cease to thank him for what he said; no doubt he did the Press credit. We thank them in charge for so kindly remembering us upon this eventful occasion.—Adrian Press.

A good story is told on a certain Northville man. About three o'clock yesterday morning he heard his horse quietly meandering down the gravel drive in front of his house and across the walk into the street. The animal stopped a moment as he called to it from an upper window and then quietly went on down the street. Looking from the back door he saw his stable open and quickly donning his clothes he seized a rope and started in pursuit. The horse led a slow chase down, up and across several alleys, through wet grass, damp dirt and stable, finally bringing up in Miller's wheat field near the Catholic church. It was a long chase but perseverance won the day—or night rather. The rope was just about to be adjusted around the horse's head when the moon in all her radiant light burst forth and the startling discovery was made that he had been chasing not his own horse but one belonging to a neighbor which in the twilight bore a close resemblance. Quietly sneaking up the hill and around the back yard he made a closer inspection of his barn and there resting quietly in the big box stall stood his own horse, as safe and collected as an American battleship, and he quietly crawled back into bed with the emphatic statement that at night that stable door would be locked hereafter. The Record mentions no names but Mrs. Neal vows she will give the whole thing away.

To The Front.

Ike Crocker, Willie Barley, Mitchel Perkins, Cass Murdock, Ed Mooney, Ed Parmenter, Lee Weymouth and Fred Wesley left for Island Lake this morning with a recruiting officer from the 35th. Others of the Northville company will wait until they can go in a body.

Rev. Mr. Sayre of St. Stephen's Episcopal church of Detroit will preach in the Baptist church this evening.

Miss Grace Lowden has been chosen delegate to represent the Northville BYPU at the national convention at Buffalo, N. Y., next week.

The Ladies' Soldier Aid society will meet in the Ladies' Library room at 2:00 o'clock Monday for work. All women are cordially invited.

Prof. Hamilton will give a stereoscopic view and lecture in the opera house tonight as a benefit to the new military company. Admission 10 cents.

Last year at this time binder twine was worth about 7 1/2 cents a pound. Today the price ranges from 15 to 18 cents. The advance is accounted for by Dewey's stay at Manila.

Plymouth township fell in line yesterday and elected a solid Spalding delegation: T. C. Sherrwood, W. F. Markham and Hiram Rowe. W. H. Hoyt was elected delegate to the state convention.

While Northville business men contributed to the Fourth of July celebration purely from patriotic motives at the same time it detracts none of their patriotism to know that they all had a good big Fourth of July trade, and that they are all a happy and pleased lot. For the next few years other towns will be given a chance.

This is how a Chinese visitor in this country describes Americans in a Chinese paper: "They live months without eating a mouthful of rice; they eat bullocks and sheep in enormous quantities; they have to bathe frequently; they eat meat with knives and prongs; they never enjoy themselves by setting quietly on their ancestors' graves, but jump around and kick balls as if paid to do it, and they have no dignity, for they may be found walking with women."

A law which probably few people were aware was in existence has been brought forward by the present war. It relates to supervisors and provides that each must make a report to the proper authorities of a full list of the names of all male residents of the township between the ages of 18 and 45, for use in case of a draft for army service. The law has not been observed for some years but this year some few supervisors are complying with its provisions.

Here is a piece of practical information that it would be well to remember: "A bit of home surgery practiced when a splinter is driven into a child's hand particularly deep is its extraction by steam. A bottle with a suitably wide mouth is filled two-thirds with very hot water, and the mouth is placed under the injured spot. The steam draws the flesh down when a little pressure is used, and the steam, in a moment or two, extracts inflammation and splinter together. This is very efficacious when the offending substance has been in for several hours, long enough to have started up some of its evil consequences."

MORE MEN NEEDED

Gen. Shafter Applies for Reinforcements.

HE CAN NOT TAKE SANTIAGO.

Enemy's Strength Was Greatly Underestimated.

MORE TROOPS TO BE SENT AT ONCE.

Apparent Reverse of Our Troops Caused Consternation at Washington—War Councils Held at the White House—President Has Confidence in Gen. Shafter's Ability—Telegram of Congratulations Sent to Him and the Troops for the Brave Efforts Made.

Washington, July 5.—Like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky came a dispatch to the secretary of war at noon Sunday from Gen. Shafter on the battlefield saying it would be impossible to carry the city of Santiago by storm with his present force of men. This came at the moment when war department officials were expecting word that Santiago had fallen and that our flag was waving over the city. Gen. Shafter gave many errors on the part of our men, but all this was lost sight of in the fact of the momentous report that the city itself, after three days of desperate battle, could not be taken. The dispatch was carried by Adjutant General Corbin to the white house, where a council of war was held by the president, Secretary Alger, Gen. Miles, Gen. Corbin, Assistant Secretary of War Meiklejohn and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Allen. The officials wore an outward calm, but the report had caused the deepest agitation. Attention was directed to sending reinforcements to Shafter immediately. In order that the battle might be renewed and Santiago taken. At the war council it was positively determined there should be no halt in the movement on Santiago, except such time as was necessary to get more men to Shafter. They will be sent from Tampa in large numbers and 15,000 men will then be moved from Chickamauga to Tampa to go forward on transports. Dispatches were sent to the fleet off Santiago, to have twelve transports return at once to Tampa to take on more troops for Shafter. Hurry orders were sent to Tampa, and one expedition of six ships with about 6,000 men left there Sunday.

Gen. Shafter's report caused an agitation throughout the national capital almost indescribable. Great crowds surrounded the bulletin boards and churchgoers were greeted with cries of "Extra" papers. The public shared the apprehension of officials, and it was feared Gen. Shafter's position had become dangerous and possibly critical. The official dispatch given out did not contain all Gen. Shafter reported, as part of the report of his future plans was suppressed in order not to reach the enemy. This told of the place he would occupy in order to protect his force from an attack by the enemy. It will be near the coast and under the guns of the American ships. There will certainly be no more fighting for the present until large reinforcements reach Shafter. In the meantime there is a possibility that the Spanish troops may make an attack on our forces, but this is not expected, as the Spaniards are quite as much worn out as our men. There are reports showing that the Spanish loss is over 1,000 and that their leading general, Linares, is severely wounded. Santiago is a mass of ruins, caused by the fire of our troops and bursting shells from Sampson's fleet. The city is like a great morgue, filled with the dying and wounded, and starvation is added to the horrors of their situation. They are far worse off than Shafter's troops, although they cling to their inurements in desperation.

The war councils at the white house were devoted to the planning for sending reinforcements. Every available ship has been ordered to Tampa, and a wholesale movement of troops will begin there. Although feeling keenly the failure to take Santiago, officials at the war department say that our troops have done splendid service against terrible odds. They have suffered from the terrible heat and have cut through almost impassable underbrush. They have captured many outposts of Santiago, driving the Spaniards into the city. But the forts and intrenchments, combined with guns of the Spanish fleet, have given the enemy heavy advantages.

Gen. Miles may be sent to the field at once to take supreme command, owing to the emergency. He wishes to go, but the war department hesitates to grant permission for fear it will be taken as a criticism of Shafter. There is no desire by the president or the secretary of war to criticize Shafter in any way. They say he has done the best possible under adverse circumstances.

Many of his best generals have been prostrated with the heat and are suffering with fever. Major General Wheeler and Gen. Young are among those fever stricken. This seriously cripples our strength. Wheeler and Young will be brought home and other generals sent in their places. There are rumors also that the heat and illness have told seriously on General Shafter himself, and that he has been unable to lead the army during the day. Officials say the heat and illness have done more than Spanish bullets to hurt our troops.

Military authorities are divided in opinion as to what circumstances brought about Gen. Shafter's condition. Some say it would have been better policy to have divided the Spanish forces and fight them near the coast, where Admiral Sampson's ships could have helped shell the enemy. But Shafter determined to drive them away from the coast and pen them up in Santiago. He thought he could then surround the town and capture it. He evidently had greatly underestimated the strength of the city's defense, as his storming has been done at very heavy cost of life, and now he is obliged to retire and wait for more men. The president showed his continued support of Shafter by sending a dispatch congratulating him and the troops on their bravery on first day's fighting. This dispatch was sent by the Secretary of War and says:

"The president directs me to say that you have earned the gratitude and thanks of the nation for the brilliant and effective work of your noble army on Friday, July 1."

It is probable the president will at once issue another proclamation calling for more troops, as the struggle at Santiago, which is known to be far weaker than Havana, has disclosed the heavy task ahead. There is to be no halt in the aggressive campaign; and the apparent temporary reverse of Gen. Shafter will bring forth efforts by officials here for an army large enough to crush the Spaniards at every point.

Late in the afternoon the President again held a council of war, attended by most of his cabinet. The plans for sending reinforcements were again gone over and a most vigorous policy determined upon.

German Critics. Berlin, July 5.—The press of the country is now commenting upon the Spanish-American war in a more unbiased manner, and with less venom toward the Americans, although the military editors continue to regard the situation as very unfavorable for the Americans as well as for the Spaniards. With regard to Cuba, it is thought that the American forces there, apart from yellow jack and the influences of the climate, are entirely inadequate. All the American operations since the United States forces have been landed, it is asserted, have been ill-advised and showed lack of foresight. The fact that the army of occupation is so insufficiently equipped with everything needful shows, the papers declare, poor generalship.

Will Hold Kaiser in Check. Paris, July 5.—The alleged good faith of Germany in the matter of the seizure of the Philippines, which, it is said, the Washington government does not doubt, is not so viewed on the continent. In fact, the belief is that Germany has ulterior designs. The attitude of the other powers, however, it is believed, will hold the war lord in check. An Italian statesman is credited with saying that he did not believe any European power would raise a hand to prevent the bombardment of Manila by American ships. By such a step the power interested would be regarded as an ally of Spain and her action would mean war. Not a power in Europe, he says, would dare to take the step.

Dewey is Disappointed. London, July 5.—The Daily Telegraph publishes a dispatch from Manila, under date of June 28, via Hong Kong, which says that the non-arrival of the transports from San Francisco has grievously disappointed Admiral Dewey. The Americans express the utmost confidence in their ability to dispose of Admiral Camara's squadron or any other ships that the Spaniards may send, but they admit that they wish that Admiral Dewey had at least one battleship.

News of Battle at Tampa. Tampa, Fla., July 5.—The news of the severe loss sustained by Gen. Shafter's army at Santiago reached Tampa Sunday. The excitement is intense, and the men are wild with the desire to go to Cuba and avenge the death of their comrades. This feeling is as strong among the volunteers as among the regulars, and there is not a soldier here who is not far more anxious to be in the midst of the conflict now than he was before the bad news was received.

Spanish Ministers Criticized. Madrid, July 5.—At a banquet in Madrid Senor Romero y Robledo made a violent anti-government speech, accusing the ministers of inactivity and being without an original idea, and leaving everything to the admirals and generals. He concluded with pointing out that the existing institutions would be endangered, adding: "But, nevertheless, we must do our duty as Spaniards and defend our country."

Will Be Kept Out of the War. Madrid, July 5.—There is belief here that the squadron of Camara will not go to the Philippines. Neither will it return to Spain. The evident intention is to keep it out of the way of the American fleet in order that it may not cut the way of the Manila squadron or meet the late ships of Cervera.

DESTROYED CERVERA'S FLEET

The Spanish Attempted to Escape from Santiago Harbor.

EVERY VESSEL DEMOLISHED.

American Warships Poured a Terrible Storm of Shot and Shell into the Fleeing Spaniards—350 Spaniards Killed, 1,600 Taken Prisoners.

Washington, July 5.—The secretary of the navy has received the following from Admiral Sampson:

The fleet under my command offers the destruction of the whole of Cervera's fleet. Not one vessel escaped. The fleet attempted to escape at 9 a. m. and at 2 p. m. the last, the Cristobal Colon, had run ashore 60 miles west of Santiago and had let down her colors. The Infanta Isabella (Maria Teresa), Oquendo and Vizcaya were forced ashore, burned and blown up within 20 miles of Santiago; the Furor and Pluton were destroyed within four miles of the port. Our loss, one killed and two wounded. Enemy's loss probably several hundred from gun fire, explosions and drowning. About 1,500 prisoners, including Admiral Cervera. The man killed was Geo. H. Ellis, chief yeoman of the Brooklyn.

The Associated Press dispatches report the glorious victory as follows: Admiral Cervera's fleet, consisting of the armored cruisers Cristobal Colon, Almirante Oquendo, Infanta Maria Teresa and Vizcaya and two torpedo boat destroyers, the Furor and the Pluton, which had been held in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba for six weeks past by the combined squadrons of Rear Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley, now lies at the bottom of the Caribbean sea off the southern coast of Cuba. The Spanish admiral is a prisoner of war on the auxiliary gunboat Gloucester (formerly Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan's yacht Corsair), and 1,500 to 1,600 other Spanish officers and sailors, all who escaped the frightful carnage caused by the shells from the American warships, are also held as prisoners of war by the United States.

The American victory is complete, and the American vessels were practically untouched, and only one man was killed, though the ships were subjected to the heavy fire of the Spaniards all the time the battle lasted. Admiral Cervera made as gallant a dash for liberty and for the preservation of his ships as has ever occurred in the history of naval warfare. In the face of overwhelming odds, with nothing before him but inevitable destruction or surrender if he remained any longer in the trap in which the American fleet held him, he made a bold dash from the harbor at the time the Americans least expected him to do so, and, fighting every inch of the way, even when his ship was ablaze and sinking, he tried to escape the doom which was written on the muzzle of every American gun trained upon his vessels.

It was about 9 o'clock in the morning when the flagship Infanta Maria Teresa passed under the wall of Morro castle and steamed out to sea. She was followed by the Cristobal Colon, Vizcaya and Oquendo and last by the torpedo boat destroyers Furor and Pluton. The look-out on the American vessels, which were lying five to ten miles off the entrance to the harbor, sighted them immediately. Most of the American cruisers were without thought of anything as surprising as the Spanish fleet getting past the sunken collier Merrimac. There was great excitement at once and very rapid action along the American lines. The signal for full speed ahead was running from bridge to engine room of every ship, and the entire fleet commenced to move in toward the Spanish and the great 12 and 13-inch guns of the battleships and the smaller batteries on the other vessels fired shot after shot.

As the ships ran in toward the shore it soon became evident that the Spaniards had not come out to make an aggressive fight, for as soon as they had cleared the harbor they started on their race for safety. At the same time sending answering shots at the American ships as fast as the men could load and fire the guns. The Brooklyn, Massachusetts, Texas, Oregon and Iowa were nearer the Spaniards than any others of the American vessels, but still most of them were too far away to get an effective range. They crowded on all-steam, however, in preparation for the chase, never stopping their fire for one moment.

The Gloucester, a fast little yacht that cannot boast of any heavier battery than several 6-pounders and 3 pounders, was lying off Aguadores, three miles east of Morro, when the Spaniards came out. At first she joined in the attack upon a large vessel, and then held off some, Lieut. Wainwright concluding to reserve his efforts for the two torpedo boat destroyers in the rear. The Gloucester steamed after them when they appeared and chased them to a point five miles west of Morro, pouring shot after shot into them all the time. Her efforts bore abundant fruit, for to her belongs the credit for the destruction of both of the destroyers. She fired 1,400 shots during the chase, and it was not long before both destroyers were on fire and plainly disabled. Both put in toward shore with smoke pouring from their sides; the crews took to the boats and made for land, about half of them reaching shore in safety. By that time the Furor was a mass of flames and was drifting about helplessly. The Pluton was in the same distressed condition and was headed for the shore, swaying up alongside of a low bluff, where she soon pounded to pieces and finally broke in two completely.

The Gloucester did not go any farther west, but lay off shore and sent a boat to the assistance of the crew.

the destroyers. It did not take the flames long to reach the Furor's magazines, and there were two terrific explosions, probably of the gun cotton on board. Her stern sank immediately and as it settled in the water her bow rose straight into the air and she went to the bottom in perpetual oblivion, giving out a hissing, scalding sound as she disappeared below the surface.

Meaning the larger American ships were gaining on the Spanish cruisers and a storm of shots was passing between the pursuer and the pursued. The American fire was so rapid that the ships were enveloped in thick clouds of smoke and it was impossible to tell at the distance which vessels were doing the greater execution. The Brooklyn, Commodore Schley's flagship, was in the lead and with the five battleships kept up an incessant firing upon the Infanta Maria Teresa, the Vizcaya and the Almirante Oquendo and the latter were returning the fire bravely, though with no success. The Spanish gunners seemed unable to get the proper range and many of their shots were very wild, though a number of them fell dangerously near the mark. The guns of the battery just east of Morro also took part in the game and their shells fell around the American ships. The Brooklyn was struck half a dozen times, but was not badly damaged and had only one man killed and one injured.

The Spanish admiral's flagship and the Oquendo were the first to show signals of distress. Two 6-inch shells from one of the battleships struck the Maria Teresa at the water line, tearing great holes in her side and causing her to fill rapidly. The Oquendo suffered about the same fate and both ships headed for a small cove and went aground 200 yards from the shore, flames shooting from them in every direction. The officers and crew must have been aware of the fate which seemed to be before them, but it was not until the ships were on fire and enveloped in flames and smoke that the men ceased firing.

The Gloucester, after sending a boat ashore to the Pluton, steamed along the coast to where the armored cruisers were stranded and went to their assistance. There was danger from the magazines and many of those on board jumped into the sea and swam to the shore, although a number were unable to reach the small strip of sandy beach in the cove and were thrown against the rocks and killed or drowned. Many of the wounded were lowered into the ships' own boats and taken ashore, but this task was a most difficult one. The Gloucester sent all her boats to the rescue and many on the flagships, including Admiral Cervera, lowered themselves into them with ropes. The wounded were taken to the Gloucester as rapidly as possible and the lower deck of the yacht was soon covered with Spanish sailors mangled in limb and body by the bursting of shells. The Gloucester's crew gave the wounded men every attention possible.

Admiral Cervera escaped to the shore in a boat sent by the Gloucester to the assistance of the Infanta Maria Teresa, and as soon as he touched the beach he surrendered himself and his command to Lieut. Morton and asked to be taken on board the Gloucester, which was the only American vessel near him at the time, with several of his officers, including the captain of the flagship. The Spanish admiral, who was also wounded in the arm, was taken to the Gloucester and was assigned at her gangway by her commander, Lieut. Commander Richard Wainwright, who placed his cabin at the disposal of the Spanish officers.

The Cristobal Colon was the fastest of the Spanish ships, and she once obtained a lead over the others after leaving the harbor and escaped the effect of the shots which destroyed the other vessels. She steamed away with great speed, with the Oregon, New York, Brooklyn and several other ships in pursuit, all of them firing at her constantly and receiving fire from herself from her after guns. The Cristobal Colon was run ashore 45 miles west of Santiago by her commander when he found that escape was impossible. The entire battle was fought and won within an hour. The Spanish loss is about 350 killed or drowned, 160 seriously wounded and 1,600 captured.

The fleet of Admiral Cervera was one of the finest Spain possessed. Four of the vessels, the Almirante Oquendo, the Infanta Maria Teresa, the Vizcaya, and the Cristobal Colon were modern armored cruisers of the first class. The Vizcaya, which visited this country soon after the Maine was sent to Havana, and was in New York harbor when the news of the destruction of the American battleship was taken to her commander. She was of 7,000 tons displacement, 340 feet long, and heavily armored, her belt armor being 12 inches in thickness, and her deck armor three inches. Her armament consisted of two 11-inch, ten 5.5-inch Hontoria guns, eight 2.2-inch rapid-fire guns, eight 1.4-inch rapid-fire guns and two mitrailleuses. She had two masts with mitered tops, two turrets, two smokestacks and a ram bow. She carried six torpedo tubes, was capable of a speed rate of 23 knots and her complement was 509 men. The Almirante Oquendo was in almost every respect a duplicate of the Vizcaya. The Cristobal Colon was 328 feet long, with six-inch side armor, and 1.5-inch armor on deck. Her armament consisted of two 10-inch, 10.6-inch rapid fire guns, six 4.7-inch, 10 2.2-inch and 10 1.4-inch guns and four torpedo tubes. She was capable of a speed of 20 knots and carried 450 men. The Maria Teresa was similar to the Colon. The Furor and Pluton were torpedo boat destroyers.

It is one of the strange fates of war that Admiral Cervera was obliged to surrender to Lieut. Commander Wainwright, who was an officer on the Maine when she was destroyed at Havana.

IN OUR GREAT STATE.

THE HAPPENINGS IN MICHIGAN BRIEFLY RELATED.

Printers Strike at Lansing Ties Up State Work—The Michigan Volunteers at Tampa Not Complaining—Other Items of Interest to Michiganders.

The Glorious Fourth. The Fourth of July in the state was apparently not observed in so noisy a manner as in former years. In many places no arrangements had been made for an official observance of the day, but the news of Sampson's destruction of Cervera's fleet at Santiago de Cuba excited matters. It caused great excitement and enthusiasm. Parades were formed, bands played patriotic airs and general rejoicing ensued. A noticeable feature was the decrease in interest in sporting events. Where programs had already been arranged the glorious news added immensely to the enthusiasm.

Strike in State Printing Office. The Robert Smith Printing Co. of Lansing, which recently secured the state printing and binding contracts, is tied up on account of a strike of all the employees. The men claim that they gave the proprietors notice that they would insist on nine hours as a day's labor. The firm bid close to the margin and state that under the terms of the contract it would be suicidal to accede to the wishes of the men. The strike promises to be a stubborn fight.

Michigan Boys Fare Well at Tampa. A Tampa dispatch says the Michigan boys in camp there live fairly well, and the heat is not overpowering. The daily routine grows monotonous at times, but day in and day out the Michigan boys have a pretty good time. The men have several hours to themselves each day, and they enjoy their spare time in bathing, fishing and hunting curiosities to send to their families at home.

A GUARDSMAN'S TROUBLE

From the Detroit (Mich.) Journal.

The promptness with which the National Guard of the different states responded to President McKinley's call for troops at the beginning of the war with Spain made the whole country proud of its citizen soldiers. In Detroit there are few guardsmen more popular and efficient than Max R. Davies, first sergeant of Co. B. He has been a resident of Detroit for the past six years, and his home is at 416 Third Avenue.

For four years he was connected with the well known wholesale drug house of Farrand, Williams & Clark, in the capacity of bookkeeper.

"I have charged up many thousands of orders for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," said Mr. Davies, "but never knew their worth until I tried them for the cure of chronic dyspepsia. For two years I suffered and doctored for the aggravating trouble but could only be helped temporarily.

"I think dyspepsia is one of the most stubborn of ailments, and there is scarcely a clerk or office man but what is more or less a victim. Some days I could eat anything, while at other times I would be starving. Those distressing pains would force me to quit work.

"I tried no water treatment thoroughly, but it did not affect my case. I have tried many advertised remedies but they would help only for a time. A friend of mine recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but I did not think much of them.

"I finally was induced to try the pills and commenced using them. After taking a few doses I found much relief. I do not remember how many boxes of the pills I used, but I used them until the old trouble stopped. I know they cured me, and I am pleased to recommend them.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 30 cents a box or six boxes for $1.50, by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"WOMAN WRONGED" LAST SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

From the Text Esther 1: 11-12 as follows: "Bring Vashti, the Queen, before the King with the Crown Royal, to Show the People and Princes Her Beauty."

We stand amid the palaces of Shushan. The pinnacles are aflame with the morning light. The columns rise festooned and wreathed, the wealth of empires flashing from the grooves; the ceilings adorned with images of bird and beast; and scenes of prowess and conquest. The walls are hung with shields, and emblazoned until it seems that the whole round of splendors is exhausted. Each arch is a mighty leaf of architectural achievement. Golden stars shining down on glowing arabesque. Hangings of embroidered work in which mingle the blueness of the sky, the greenness of the grass and the whiteness of the seafoam. Tapestries hung on silver rings, wedding together the pillars of marble. Pavilions reaching out in every direction. These for repose, filled with luxuriant couches, in which weary limbs sink until all fatigue is submerged. Those for casual where kings drink down a kingdom at one swallow. Amazing spectacle! Light of silver dripping down over stairs of ivory on shields of gold. Floors of stained marble, sunset red and night black, and inlaid with gleaming pearl. In connection with this palace there is a garden, where the mighty men of foreign lands are seated at a banquet. Under the spread of oak and linden and acacia the tables are arranged. The breath of honey-suckle and frankincense fills the air. Fountains leap up into the light, the spray struck through with rainbows falling into crystalline baptism upon flowering shrubs, then rolling down through channels of marble, and widening out here and there into pools swirling with the funny tribes of foreign aquariums, bordered with scarlet anemones, hypericums, and many-colored ranunculus.

Meats of rarest bird and beast smoldering amid wreaths of aromatics. The vases filled with apricots and almonds. The basket piled up with pomegranates, figs and oranges and pomegranates. Melons tastefully twined with leaves of acacia. The bright waters of Euphrates filling the urns and dropping outside the rim in flashing beads amid the traceries. Wine from the royal vats of Isphahan and Shiraz, in bottles of tinged shell, and lily-shaped cups of silver, and flagons and tankards of solid gold. The music rises higher, and the revelry breaks out into wilder transport, and the wine has flushed the cheek and touched the brain, and louder than all other voices are the bleat of the inebriates, the gabble of fools, and the song of the drunkards.

In another part of the palace Queen Vashti is entertaining the Princess of Persia at a banquet. Drunken Ahazuerus says to his servants, "You go and fetch Vashti from that banquet with the women, and bring her to this banquet with the men, and let me display her beauty." The servants immediately start to obey the king's command; but there was a rule in Oriental society that no woman might appear in public without having her face veiled. Yet here was a mandate that no one dare dispute, demanding that Vashti come in unveiled before the multitude. However, there was in Vashti's soul a principle more regal than Ahazuerus, more brilliant than the gold of Shushan, of more wealth than the realm of Persia, which commanded her to disobey this order of the king; and so the righteousness and holiness and modesty of her nature rise up into one sublime refusal. She says, "I will not go into the banquet unveiled. Ahazuerus was infuriated; and Vashti, robbed of her position and her estate, is driven forth in poverty and ruin to suffer the scorn of a nation, and yet to receive the approval of the nations, who shall rise to admire this martyr to kindle intolerance. Well, the last vestige of that feast is gone; the last garland had faded; the last arch has fallen; the last tankard has been destroyed; and Shushan is a ruin; but as long as the world stands there will be multitudes of men and women, familiar with the Bible, who will come into this picture gallery of God and admire the divine portrait of Vashti the queen, Vashti the veiled, Vashti the sacrifice, Vashti the silent.

In the first place, I want you to look upon Vashti the queen. A blue ribbon, rayed with white, drawn around her forehead, indicated her queenly position. It was no small honor to be queen in such a realm as that. Hark to the rustle of her robes! See the blaze of her jewels! And yet it is not necessary to have place and regal robe in order to be queenly. When I see a woman with stout faith in God, putting her foot upon all meanness and selfishness and godless display, going right forward to serve Christ and the race by a grand and a glorious service, I say: "That woman is a queen," and the ranks of heaven look over the battlements upon the coronation; and whether she comes up from the shanty cot on the commons or the mansion of the fashionable square, I greet her with the shout, "All hail, Queen Vashti!"

What glory was there on the brow of Mary of Scotland, or Elizabeth of England, or Margaret of France, or Catherine of Russia, compared with the worth of some of our Christian mothers, many of them gone into glory?—or of that woman mentioned in the Scriptures, who put her all into the Lord's treasury?—or of Jephthah's daughter, who made a demonstration of unselfish patriotism?—or of Abigail, who rescued the herds and flocks of her husband?—or of Ruth, who toiled under a tropical sun for poor, old, helpless, who went at midnight to stanch the battle wounds of the Crimea?—or of Mrs. Adoniram Judson, who kindled the lights of salvation amid the darkness of Burmah?—or of Mrs. Hemans, who poured out her holy soul in words which will forever be associated with brighter's horn, and captive's chain, and hunder's hour, and lute's thrub, and curfew's knell at the dying day?—and scores and hundreds of women, unknown on earth, who have given water to the thirsty, and bread to the hungry, and medicine to the sick, and smiles to the discouraged, their footsteps heard along dark lane and in government hospital, and in almshouse corridor, and by prison-gate? There may be no royal robe—there may be no palatial surroundings. She does not need them; for all charitable men will unite with the crackling lips of fever-struck hospital, and plague-blotched lazaretto in greeting her as she passes. "Hail! Hail! Queen Vashti!"

Again, I want you to consider Vashti the veiled. Had she appeared before Ahazuerus and his court on that day with her face uncovered she would have shocked all the delicacies of Oriental society, and the very men who in their intoxication demanded that she come, in their sober moments would have despised her. As some flowers seem to thrive best in the dark lane and in the shadow, and where the sun does not seem to reach them, so God appoints to most womanly natures a retiring and unobtrusive spirit. God once in a while does call an Isabella to a throne, or a Miriam to strike the timbre! at the front of a host, or a Marie Antoinette to quell a French mob, or a Deborah to stand at the front of an armed battalion; crying out, "Up! Up!" This is the day in which the Lord will deliver Sisera into thy hands. And when the women are called to such out-door work and to such heroic positions, God prepares their feet, and they have iron in their soul, and lightnings in their eye, and whirlwinds in their breath, and the borrowed strength of the Lord Omnipotent in their right arm. They walk through furnaces as though they were hedges of wild-flowers, and cross seas as though they were shimmering sapphires, and all the harpies of hell down to their dungeon at the stamp of womanly indignation.

But these are the exceptions. Generally, Dorcas would rather make a garment for the poor boy; Rebecca would rather fill the trough of the camels; Hannah would rather make a coat for Samuel; the Hebrew maid would rather give a prescription for Naaman's leprosy; the woman of Sarepta would rather gather a few sticks to cook a meal for famished Elijah; Phoebe would rather carry a letter for the inspired apostle; Mother Lois would rather educate Timothy in the Scriptures. When I see a woman going about her daily duty, with cheerful dignity presiding at the table, with kind and gentle but firm discipline presiding in the nursery, going out into the world without any blast of trumpets, following in the footsteps of him who went about doing good—I say: "This is Vashti with a veil on."

But when I see a woman of unblushing boldness, loud voiced, with a tongue of infinite clatter-clatter, with arrogant look, passing through the streets with the step of a walking-beam, gayly arrayed in a very hurricane of millinery, I cry out: "Vashti has lost her veil!" When I see a woman struggling for political preferment—trying to force her way up to conspicuousity, amid the masculine demagogues, who stand with swollen fists and bloodshot eyes and pestiferous breath, to guard the polls—wanting to go through the loafers and the delinquents of popular sovereigns, who crawl up from the saloons greasy and foul and vermin-covered, to decide questions of justice and order and civilization—when I see a woman, I say, who wants to press through all that horrible scum to get to public place and power, I say: "Ah, what a pity! Vashti has lost her veil!"

When I see a woman of comely features and of adroitness of intellect, and endowed with all that the sciences can do for her, and of high social position, yet moving in society with superciliousness and hauteur, as though she would have people know their place, and with an undefined combination of giggle and strut and rhodomontade, endowed with allopathic quantities of talk, but only homeopathic infinitesimals of sense, the terror of dry goods clerks and railroad conductors, discoverers of significant meanings in plain conversation, prodigies of badinage and innuendo—I say: "Vashti has lost her veil."

Again, I want you this morning to consider Vashti the sacrifice. Who is this that I see coming out of that palace gate of Shushan? It seems to me that I have seen her before. She comes homeless, houseless, friendless, trudging along with a broken heart. Who is she? It is Vashti the sacrifice. Oh! what a change it was from regal position to a wayfarer's crust! A little while ago, approved and sought for; now, none so poor as to acknowledge her acquaintanceship. Vashti the sacrifice!

One night during our civil war I went to Hagerstown to look at the army, and I stood on a hilltop and looked down upon them. I saw the camp-fires all through the valleys and all over the hills. It was a weird spectacle, those camp-fires, and I stood and watched them; and the soldiers who were gathered around them were no doubt, talking of their homes, and of the long march they had taken, and of the battles they were to fight; but after awhile I saw these camp-fires begin to lower; and they continued to lower, until they were all gone out, and the army slept. It was imposing when I saw the camp-fires; it was imposing in the darkness when I thought of that great host asleep. Well, God looks down from heaven, and he sees the fire-sides of Christendom and the loved ones gathered around these fire-sides. These are the camp-fires where we warm ourselves at the close of day, and talk of the battles of life we have fought and the battles that are yet to come. God grant that when at last these fires begin to go out, and continue to lower until finally they are extinguished, and the ashes of consumed hopes strew the hearth of the old homestead, it may be because we have Gone to sleep the last sleep,

From which none ever wake to weep.

Now we are an army on the march of life. Then we shall be an army bivouacked in the tent of the grave.

Once more: I want you to look at Vashti the silent. You do not hear any outcry from this woman as she goes forth from the palace gate. From the very dignity of her nature, you know there will be no vociferation. Sometimes in life it is necessary to make a retort; sometimes in life it is necessary to resist; but there are crises when the most triumphant thing to do is to keep silence. The philosopher, confident in his newly discovered principle, waiting for the coming of the more intelligent generations, willing that men should laugh at the lightning rod and cotton gin and steamboat and telegraph—waiting for long years through the scoffing of philosophical schools, in grand and magnificent silence.

Galileo, condemned by mathematicians, and monks, and cardinals, caricatured everywhere; yet waiting and watching with his telescope to see the coming up of stellar reinforcements, when the stars in their courses would fight for the Copernican system; then sitting down in complete blindness and deafness to wait for the coming on of the generations who would build his monument and bow at his grave. The reformer, execrated by his contemporaries, fastened in a pillory, the slow fires of public contempt burning under him, ground under the cylinders of the printing press, yet calmly waiting for the day when purity of soul and heroism of character will get the sanction of earth and the plaudits of heaven.

Affliction enduring without any complaint the sharpness of the pang, and the violence of the storm, and the heat of the chain, and the darkness of the night—waiting until a divine hand shall be put forth to soothe the pang, and hush the storm, and release the captive. A wife, abused, persecuted, and a perpetual exile from every earthly comfort—waiting, waiting, until the Lord shall gather up his dear children to a heavenly home, and no poor Vashti will ever be thrust out from the palace gate. Jesus, in silence and answering not a word, drinking the gall, bearing the cross, in prospect of the rapturous consummation when

Angels thronged his chariot wheel,
And bore him to his throne,
Then swept their golden harps and sung,
"The glorious work is done!"

Oh, woman! does not this story of Vashti the queen, Vashti the veiled, Vashti the sacrifice, Vashti the silent, move your soul? My sermon conveys into one absorbing hope that none of you may be shut out of the palace gate of Heaven. You can endure the hardships, and the privations, and the cruelties, and the misfortunes of this life if you can only gain admission there. Through the blood of the everlasting covenant you go through those gates, or never go through at all. God forbid that you should at last be banished from the society of angels, and banished from the companionship of your glorified kindred, and banished forever. Through the rich grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, may you be enabled to imitate the example of Rachel, and Hannah, and Abigail, and Deborah, and Mary, and Esther, and Vashti.

Britain's Triplet of Crosses.
From the Boston Transcript. Great Britain's national flag has been called "a triplet of crosses," for it is composed of the cross of St. George, the cross of St. Andrew and the cross of St. Patrick. Thus, the flag of "St. George for Marie England," a red cross on a white ground, the red lines drawn straight from top to bottom and from side to side; the flag of St. Andrew for Scotland, a white cross on a blue ground; the flag of St. Patrick for Ireland; a red cross on a white ground, the narrow red lines drawn from corner to corner. By placing the cross of St. George on that of St. Andrew we have "the Jack," as ordered in 1606 by James I., whose signature was always "Jacques," hence the expression "the Jack." By laying the cross of St. Patrick over that of St. Andrew and then placing that of St. George over both we have "the union Jack," as borne since the union with Ireland in 1800.

For a Monument to President Tyler.
Capt. Lamb, representing the Richmond (Va.) district, has been working to secure some appropriate monument to mark the grave of former President John Tyler. Visitors to Hollywood Cemetery are pointed to the spot, overlooking the James river, where two presidents of the United States are buried, but there is nothing but a modest headstone to mark the grave of President Tyler.

Foreigners in the Riviera.
There are about 270,000 foreigners who pass from a week to a whole winter on the Riviera each year, and it has been estimated that the average expenditure of each while there is about $200. In other words, the foreign visitors spend about $54,000,000 in the country every winter.

Reverend of a Benedict.
Many a husband is lost in wonder as he reflects that the glowing hand which spans his children and serves up his cabbage is the same hand which he used to write sonnets about, and which he never kissed without a sense of reverence amounting to rapture.—Roxbury Gazette.

600 PERSONS DROWNED

Trans-Atlantic Liner Sunk by a Collision on the Atlantic Ocean.

Halifax, N. S.: The British iron ship Cromartyshire was towed in by the Allan liner Grecian, with her bow torn away by a collision, 60 miles south of Sable Island, with the French steamer La Bourgoigne, which latter vessel went down 10 minutes later. Of the 800 passengers and crew on board La Bourgoigne, only 200 were saved. Only one woman was saved, and she by her husband. The captain and other deck officers went down with the ship. Two Cromartyshire laid to and picked up 170 passengers and 30 seamen, who were rescued, transferring them to the Grecian, which came along shortly afterwards.

New York, There were on board La Bourgoigne 191 first-class cabin passengers, 125 second cabin, and 295 steerage, making a total of 611 passengers, in addition to which there were 220 in the crew, making a grand total of 831 souls on board. La Bourgoigne was bound from New York for Havre and most of the passengers were Americans.

La Bourgoigne was built in 1866; was a four-mast, ship-rigged, screw steamer of 7,395 tons gross, and 8,000 horse power; she was 496 feet long, 52 feet beam and 34.6 feet deep. She was built of steel and iron and had 12 water compartments.

BEFORE THE BATTLE.

American Forces Succeeded Pushed the Spanish into Santiago.

Within a week after the landing of American troops near Santiago one battle had been fought and the entire Spanish forces had been driven within the intrenchments surrounding the city of Santiago, and the Americans had moved in force to within two or three miles of the doomed city. The troops were moved without serious delay, and pushed forward rapidly, but the movement of the pack trains, wagons, ambulances and artillery taxed the skill and endurance of the officers and men to the utmost. From Bajiquiri, where the artillery was landed, to the point of concentration, the road runs through a tangle of tropical undergrowth, up and down steep hillsides and over treacherous swamp-bordered streams, for a distance of over 15 miles. Through this continuous thicket engineers set at work leveling the track and filling pits, while a large force of regulars and volunteers with axes, aided by Cubans with machetes, began hacking down trees and clearing out the brush to enable the heavy artillery to be brought up to the front.

Meanwhile the American front advanced to within a mile of the Spanish intrenchments. The main force of infantry encamped on the Santiago side of the Guama river and the cavalry under Gen. Wheeler held the rear, between the Guama river and the Sevilla hills. The Cubans easily took possession of the Spanish blockhouses between their intrenchments and the American forces. Gen. Lawton, Gen. Chaffee and Gen. Wheeler thoroughly reconnoitered the Spanish position and, with the aid of information furnished by the Cubans, secured very good maps of the roads and defenses of the city. Much information was also obtained from Spanish pacificos, who gave themselves up in the hope of getting food. They report great starvation and distress in Santiago. They say the Spanish troops are on short rations and that all the supplies are being held for their use.

The Situation at Manila.

A Manila dispatch via Hong Kong says the presence of five German warships in the harbor continues to be the disturbing feature. German officers are much ashore and are on friendly terms with the Spanish officials. The German fleet surpasses the American squadron both in tonnage and armament. The German and American warships are not displaying much courtesy. An American official writes as follows: "If great bloodshed and destruction come to Manila, Spain may justly blame the Germans. Manila would have surrendered before the arrival of the German squadron without bloodshed, but now, owing to the moral support of its presence, the city refuses to surrender."

Madrid: Dispatches received from Manila say the Spaniards are determined to fight to the death, and that there is every reason to believe that when the American troops arrive desperate fighting will occur. It is supposed at Manila that the German warships will prevent the bombardment of that place, and it is alleged that Prince Henry, of Prussia, is on his way there on board a warship. The government has wired Capt. Gen. Augusti at Manila to resist to the end; as the voyage of Admiral Camara will be expedited.

Manila: The report that Germany will not permit a bombardment is exciting deep irritation in the American fleet. Admiral Dewey intends to demand a capitulation the instant reinforcements arrive.

Heroes Rewarded for Brave Deeds.

The President sent two special messages to congress providing for recognition of the services of Lieut. Hobson, the hero of the Merrimack, of Lieut. Newcombe and crew of the revenue cutter Hudson, which rescued the disabled torpedo boat Winslow from under the Spanish guns at Cardenas; Capt. Hodgson, of the dispatch boat Hugh McCulloch, which figured in the battle of Manila, and Naval Cadet Wright Powell, who held a steam launch under the Spanish guns at the mouth of Santiago harbor, searching for the crew of the Merrimack. Hobson is to be transferred from the construction corps to the line of the navy and suitably advanced. The Hudson's crew are to be given a vote of thanks and suitable medals. Cadet Powell will be advanced. Capt. Hodgson is to be suitably recognized.

Hair Hints

Is your hair dry, harsh, and brittle? Is it fading or turning gray? Is it falling out? Does dandruff trouble you? For any or all of these conditions there is an infallible remedy in Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor.

"For years, I was troubled with dandruff, large flakes scaling and falling off, causing great annoyances. Sometimes the itching of the scalp was almost unendurable. Prescriptions from eminent physicians, put up in my own drug store were tried, but failed to afford relief. At length I used Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor, and in one week I found it helped me. At the end of only two weeks, my head was entirely free from dandruff, and as clean as a child's. I heartily recommend Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor to all who are suffering from diseases of the scalp."—EDWIN NONSTROM, Drugs, etc., Sacred Heart, Minn.
